WAUSEON NOTES.

Wauseon, Sept. 12.—(Special)—Judge J. M. Ritchie, of Toledo, was here yesterday assisting the defense in the motion for suspension of injunction in the township case between Dover and Franklin.

Sheriff Cannell brought E. Morgan up from Delta yesterday to answer to a charge sworn against him by Miss Georgia Demmings, of this county. Morgan is a married man, and his position is somewhat embarrassing. He gave bonds and was released.

GEN. THORNTON DEAD.

CO-OPERATION FAILED.

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—The suspension of the Consumers' Merchandise, Clothing and Provision store is announced. It was worked on the co-operative plan. Distrust caused by recent failures of similar concerns was assigned for the failure. The company was organized last April and did a good business. Its liabilities are placed at $15,000; assets unknown.

But Will Fight if the Occasion Arises.

Such Is the Official Statement of the Kaiser.

Miners Make Demands of the Labor Congress.

The Jews All Expect to Get Rich in America.

Political Parties in Parliament Cannot Afford to Ignore the Wants of the Workmen Longer—General Foreign Gossip.

London, Sept. 12.—A Berlin dispatch says that an important announcement may shortly be expected in the reichsanzeiger, as a result of the kaiser's consultations with Francis Joseph, and the conferences that have been going on at intervals between the kaiser, Chancellor Caprivi and the Prussian minister of war.

The nature of the announcement has not been permitted to leak out, although it is surmised that the kaiser will place himself squarely on record as to his attitude on the subject of possible hostilities and show, and, as he stated verbally, that he sincerely wants peace, but is ready to fight, if called upon.

Berlin accounts of the French manoeuvres, derived at second hand, no German being allowed near the French army, are not flattering and do not conceal the confidence that the Germans are still more than a match for the French. The Austrian and Bavarian manoeuvres, on the other hand, have been characterized in terms of high eulogy, and the military situation, from a German standpoint, is described as very bright.

In connection with the present meeting of the trades union congress at Newcastle a strong agitation is in progress among the miners of North Wales for the virtual abolition of mining royalties, as paid to private royalty owners.

The miners demand that all mining royalties shall become the property of the crown, to be used in the encouragement of trade. It is stated that the royalties in all amount to about six million pounds, and the miners want this money applied to the erection of hospitals for the treatment of people injured in mining accidents, the provision of wash and bath houses at all colleries, the support of technical schools for instruction in mining, etc.

The Derbyshire miners have also declared in favor of a similar change.

The Hirsch fund, according to a Hamburg correspondent, is now aiding only those Hebrews who desire to emigrate to the United States. In response to positive representations from the British cabinet Baron Hirsch is said to have given an engagement that no more exiled Russian Jews would be sent to any country under the British flag. There is denial here, writes the Hamburg correspondent, of the intention to make the United States the future home of the Jews. He says:

"They are to be got there under any pretext and assisted as much as possible to get a start in life. None of the Jews have confidence in any other destination and they all expect to get rich in America."

In the New Castle labor congress the United Press correspondent had an interview yesterday with President Burt. Mr. Burt expressed himself convinced that the congress would have an early and material influence upon legislation in parliament and that the day had gone by when any political party could afford to ignore the demands of such a congress.

The socialists have scored a victory in the congress over the miners of Durham by the vote in favor of an eight hour day being made of universal application.

NEWS FROM FINDLAY.

The City to Have a New Pipe Line.

Hancock County's Valuation—General News from the Brilliant City.

Findlay, Sept. 12.—(Special)—Auditor of State Poe has just submitted to Auditor Metcalf the true valuation of the real estate in this city and county and the reduction allowed by the state board of equalization, as follows:

Total for county, $14,487,689; reduction, $1,113,858. Total for Findlay, $4,738,500; reduction allowed, $526,500.

There was a like reduction in all the small towns throughout the county. The increase in the last decade has been wonderful, and should be credited to the finding of gas and oil.

Will Build the Line.

The city gas trustees held another special meeting last night for the purpose of opening the bids and awarding the contract for the new 12-inch pipe line to the north field, which is estimated to cost $75,000. The trustees have carefully examined the law, and claim they have the legal right to build it, and that it is an absolute necessity.

Short News Notes.

Fremont and Findlay base ball clubs will cross bats to-morrow at Delmonte park. This is a new departure in this usually quiet city. The park, however, is situated outside the city limits.

The long-talked-of wrestling match, advertised to come off at Davis' opera house on Thursday evening, proved to be a dismal failure. One of the local sports failed to appear.

The annual convention of the Hancock county W. C. T. U. closed yesterday, after an interesting session. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Ella Canine, McComb; vice-president, Mrs. M. L. Detwiler, Findlay; treasurer, Mrs. Carrie Hurley, Findlay; Secretary, Orpha L. Humason, Findlay.

OUT OF FUNDS.

No Money to Probe the Affairs of the Keystone Bank.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Treasury officials are seeking to find some fund out of which to continue the Keystone national bank examination which up to this time has been prosecuted by government officials in Philadelphia. The $7,000 appropriated for the purpose of examining national banks has been exhausted in this investigation and for the balance of this fiscal year no money for this purpose is available unless congress especially appropriates more. An effort is being made to use the fund of the secret service and Acting Secretary Spaulding said to-day that if any money could be properly directed to this service the investigation would certainly proceed.

COULD NOT LIVE WITHOUT HER.

Boston, Sept. 12.—Wm. H. Colley, colored, a student at the Harvard Medical school, recently became enamored of a young colored girl of which his father did not approve. About midnight last night young Colley came home and on his father asking him if he had been to the theatre with the girl he replied that he had. The old man reproved him and peremptorily forbade him to have anything more to do with the girl. Young Colley then without speaking produced a revolver and shot himself in the breast, dying in a few minutes.

HIRSCH'S JEWISH SCHEME.

London, Sept. 12.—In commenting on the details of Baron Hirsch's Jewish colonization scheme, the Times says: This collossal scheme is the most remarkable of the kind ever launched by practical men. It is impossible, however, not to entertain misgivings as to its future. The fitness of the Jews for the proposed career may be doubted, while if it was worked on a large scale the czar might refuse to let his people go. Finally, the very magnitude of the scheme exposes it to innumerable risks."

IT WAS A COSTLY DRUNK.

Sam'l o' Posen Tries to Explain His Case.

Drink Took Him Away from His Family and Caused His Present Trouble.

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—M. B. Curtis was a pitiable object as he sat in the police station last night wringing his hands in despair, running from one officer to another to protest his innocence and telling in an incoherent, drunken way of his doings during the night.

He was intoxicated, and as he staggered up from his seat some one would push him back again. Time and again he started to his feet.

"My God," he cried, "if I could only recall the last four hours of my life. I'm no murderer, gentlemen; I had no pistol. I shot nobody. I haven't an enemy in the world."

Vainly he protested his innocence of any offense and wanted to go home to his wife.

In a rambling way he told the story of his business and his affairs. He came to this city from his home in Berkeley on the 7:30 o'clock boat with his wife and Dr. Cook and his family of Berkeley. He had purchased a box for the Bernhardt performance and left his wife and those with her at the Grand opera house.

Then he went to the Tivoli opera house, where he met William Kreling, the proprietor, and a person whose name he could not recollect, but who spoke French and represented himself to be a drummer for a liquor house. The trio remained in the Tivoli until the end of the performance. Then Curtis claimed that he knew nothing more. He broke off in his story to tell about his property in Berkeley, its value and its tenants.

In a few minutes he resumed his narrative of the incidents of the night and said that after leaving the Tivoli he went to the Grand opera house to meet his wife. While on the street he was caught in a crowd. Some one struck him in the back of the neck and he fought his way out to the street. There he found himself in the hands of Officer Grant. Why he was arrested he did not know, but he protested that he went with the officer witout any opposition.

"Why did you draw your pistol on him?" was asked.

"I had no pistol," he exclaimed, "and I didn't shoot any one. I am sorry it happened. I wanted to have a good time and never harmed a man in my life."

THE ARTIST TOO GAY.

A Tiffin Camera Fiend Harshly Treated.

Tiffin, O., Sept. 12.—A few days since at Put-in-Bay J. H. Burkbolder, a prominent photographer of this city, took a kodak snap at a party of ladies on the bathing beach.

Among those caught by the camera in the partial undress of a bathing suit was Miss Edith Spayth, of this city. Upon returning to the city Burkholder finished several of the pictures and had them on private exhibition.

Last evening Arthur H. Unger and Will Bloom, the former a relative of Miss Spayth and the latter her favorite young man, visited the gallery and demanded of Burkholder that he give up the pictures and destroy the negative.

This the photographer refused to do, when the visitors assaulted him and beat him in a brutal manner. Their amusement was interrupted by the arrival of a policeman, who escorted the trio to the station house. Bloom and Unger were given a hearing later and fined for assault and battery.

ABDUCTORS CAUGHT.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 12.—Detective Sullivan of Tacoma, who abducted William Bailey, a young millionaire here, and R. B. Albertson, Bailey's attorney, yesterday, getting them in a hack and with pistol at their heads starting for Tacoma, was overtaken by a posse from here about midnight and brought back. Sullivan wanted to arrest them for alleged connection with some fraudulent transaction.

RUN DOWN BY CARS.

Warren, O., Sept. 12.—Jacob H. Shaffer, a wealthy farmer of Champion township, accompanied by his daughters, Ella and Plunna, was run down by a Pennsylvania express train this morning while driving to the fair. All three were instantly killed.

PORTENDS SUCCESS.

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 12.—The Western Washington Industrial exposition opened here with an immense attendance from all parts of the state. President Harrison sent a congratulatory telegram. It is a fine exhibit of the varied resources of the state and a part of it will be taken to the world's fair.

A FAST THREE-YEAR-OLD.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 12.—The 3-year old bay filly Blontonian, owned by Muse & Adams, of Lewisburg, Tenn., trotted a mile over the Murfreesboro mile track Wednesday in 2:22¼. This is the fastest mile ever trotted by a 3-year old.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Thomas S. Steven's furniture manufactory was burned this morning. Loss, $25,000. Insurance, $18,000. Frank Luby, a fireman, was struck by a falling wall and killed.

SCOTT IMPROVING.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 12.—Hon. W. L. Scott has improved so much while in Newport that several members of his family have felt free to return to Erie. They have hopes of his ultimate recovery.

SHORT IN ACCOUNTS.

Brookville, Ind., Sept. 12.—County Treasurer Bender, of this, Franklin county, is alleged to be $3,000 short. His whereabouts are unknown.

BLACK BASS FISHING

Among the Reefs of the Lake Erie Islands.

A Cincinnati Dude Who Could Not Catch Fish.

The New Hotel Victory—The Fruit Crop This Season—How Visitors Are Treated at Put-in Bay.

Put-in-Bay, Sept. 12.—(Special)—The season of 1891 is fast drawing to a close and so far at least as Put-in-Bay is concerned, is virtually at an end. People who came here to spend the hot days of the summer mid cooling breezes and in a sort of happy-go-lucky manner, free from the toil and restraints of business life, have returned to their city haunts, and the hotels are well nigh deserted.

The season has been the most successful and profitable for the hotels of any year in the history of the place. People who were here this year speak of the resort in the highest terms of praise, and there is no doubt but that next season will witness a great influx of visitors to the island. Mr. George Beebe, of the Beebe house, said to a Bee:

"This has been the most profitable year we have ever had, and the reputation of Put-in-Bay as a first-class resort is now so firmly established that we have little fear for the future. People were here this summer who were never here before, and they will come again. The building of the Hotel Victory will be a great thing for us, and we confidently expect that within a very few years Put-in-Bay will be in the lead among the fresh-water resorts in the United States."

The Fishing Season.

Although the cool weather seekers have gone home, another class of pleasure hunters are arriving, and although they will not be so numerous as the former, they will be infinitely more enthusiastic. The brigade of fishermen who annually visit the Lake Erie islands for a week or two of fine sport, is referred to.

In season there are but few finer fishing grounds than the reefs among the islands, but the season does not last long. Black bass fishing is splendid there but twice a year, in the spring and in the fall, for but twice during each year does this gamey fish leave the deep for a few days' recreation in the shoal water.

He only remains a few days, but while he is there he can furnish more sport for the fishermen than any other member of the finny tribe. Just now the bass are coming out on the reefs and in a few days the season will be at its height.

On the reefs about South Bass, North and Middle Bass, and Ballast island, the most fishing may be found, although Colchester reef is a favorite resort. Others prefer East Sister and the shoal water about Point au Pelee, but on the whole no better place can be found than in the waters in the vicinity of Put-in-Bay.

A fairly good fisherman, one who understands the wily tactics of the black bass when hooked, can take from forty to fifty per day, without much exertion or much expense.

To the tyro it seems easy to catch black bass, but the first time he tries it he will be disappointed. He will find that the fish is just about as smart as he is, and if it did get impaled on a hook it knows how to free itself.

A Dude's experience.

The other day a Cincinnati dude landed at Put-in-Bay for a few days' fishing, armed with all the costly paraphernalia known to fishermen, and resolved in his own mind to catch all the black bass in Lake Erie.

His rod was the finest split bamboo boat rod, his reel an improved Henshall, his line the finest and best of silk, and his hooks the best Carlyle. He carried in his pocket such an assortment of flies, spoons, and other kinds of artificial bait, as would have made a man who knows how to use them, turn green with envy. He was attired in the nattiest of fishing costumes and carried the finest brands of cigars by the box.

Fixed up for business he sailed out of the Beebe house, and asked superciliously for the best fishing ground. He was directed by Walter Ladd of the Beebe house boat-house where to go, and procuring a light boat and a hundrer minnows, his dudeship went off in the direction of the reef at Ballast island, as the early morning sun was slanting its first rays earthward.

He reached the ground and anchoring his boat close to a fellow who was fishing with an ordinary cane pole, and pulling in black bass about as fast as he could string 'em, proceeded to make his first cast. He hooked a good sized minnow on and dropped his hook in 12 feet of water. Pretty soon he got a strike and immediately begun to operate his improved Henshall reel so rapidly that in a few seconds he had a large black bass, to the surface of the water.

"I'll show these fellahs how to do this ahtistically,' quoth the youth as he reached for his expensive landing net. Just as he was about to lift his bassship out of the water, the cunning fish turned a somersault, and was gone like a flash. The Cincinnati man looked sort 'o dazed, and a silent chuckle came from the man with the cane pole.

He tried another minnow with the same result, and another and still another, but nary a fish could he land.

"Could you tell me why I cannot get those bass, my friend?" said he to the cane rod man.

"Don't know how," ejaculated the latter, as he lifted a three-pounder into his boat with much dexterity.

When the dude got back to the hotel at night he had a rock bass and two perch to show for his day's work.

The moral of the story is: Do not think that because you can catch a perch or a sunfish you can land a bass equally as well. You may be fooled.

The New Hotel.

The new Hotel Victory is now almost entirely plastered and the wood work in the interior of the vast building is about all painted. Work just now is not being pushed for the reason that the house can be easily finished and furnished by the time for the opening of the next season.

Much work has been put on the grounds surrounding the park this year, and by the beginning of the next summer season Victory park will look like a veritable paradise. Mr. Tillotson will positively have the great house open by the first of June, and he could have had a portion of it ready this year, had he not decided to open it all at once with a grand flourish of trumpets. Prominent men from all over the country will be invited to this grand opening, and it will be a wonderful event and will mark the beginning of a new era in the history of Put-in Bay as a resort.

The writer talked with a gentlman who is in the hotel business at Detroit, connected with the Griswold, and he said:

There is no question but that the Hotel Victory is the largest resort hotel in this country, if not in the world, and if the people come here and fill it up, Put-in Bay will enjoy a great boom. The one trouble about it in my judgment seems to be that it is too large, although I may be wrong. I think that the thanks of everybody on the island are due to Mr. Tillotson for the pluck he has shown in putting the hotel up in the face of the discouraging obstacles he has met and overcome."

The Fruit Crop.

The fruit crop on the islands this year is immense, and the steamers carry away vast amounts of peaches and grapes daily. The late peaches are just becoming ripe, and will be ready for the market soon.

Erroneous Reports.

There is one thing that ought to be corrected in connection with Put-in-Bay, and that is the erroneous reports that have been circulated regarding the exorbitant prices charged guests for the privileges they may desire to enjoy.

Hackmen have especially been lambasted by visitors who have had a fancied grudge, but it is a fact that prices for hacks and in fact everything else on the island, are as reasonable as could be expected, and visitors are treated in such a manner as will induce them generally to return. There may be an occasional robber, but not all the people at Put-in-Bay are robbers, by a long way.

TIFFIN CITIZEN DEAD.

Captain Robert Lysle Ends His Earthly Career.

Tiffin, Sept. 12.—(Special)—Capt. Robert Lysle, who for many years has been prominently identified with Tiffin's business interests, died at 11 o'clock last night, after a lingering illness of many months.

Mr. Lysle was also well known in Toledo, and at one time traveled for the Hall Safe and Lock company and he conducted the oldest insurance agency in this city.

For over thirty years he was an elder in the Presbyterian church and he was a Sir Knight Templar for over twenty-five years.

Mr. Lysle's death resulted from a complication of diseases contracted during his service in the war, and from which he never fully recovered.

He leaves a wife and six children, one of whom is Mrs. J. W. Andrews, formerly of Toledo and prominent in musical circles.

LOST AT SEA.

The Captain and Crew of the Camelia Went Down.

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 12.—The crew of the bark Camelia, lost at Scatterie, consisted of the captain and eight men. There is hardly a doubt but that all were lost.

The storm of the early part of the week caused much damage to shipping at Arichat. The schooners Swan, Lettie M. Hardy, Headreather and Dolphin were badly damaged and several fishing boats were lost. A number of vessels were driven ashore at Decouse, West Arichat and Petit De Gras. The steamer Hayter, while leaving for Glace bay foundered when but a short distance from shore, while the schooner Renfrew went adrift and will prove a total wreck.

WAS IT SPITE WORK?

Investigation Into Auditor Wirick's Books.

Webster Has Found Nothing Out of the Way as Far as He Has Gone.

Upper Sandusky, Sept. 12.—(Special)—There is considerable talk to-day about the investigation of the auditor's office, ordered by State Auditor Poe.

C. W. Webster, who was appointed to make the examination, inspected the treasurer's office yesterday and found it all right and will return Monday to complete the examination of the auditor's office.

The complaint against Auditor S. J. Wirick is evidently the result of spite work, as Mr. Wirick was instrumental in making a number of citizens of this county pay large sums for back taxes.

OHIO PENSION ROLL.

Over a Million to Be Distributed this Month.

Columbus, O., Sept. 12.—The disbursements at the United States pension agency since the 4th of this month amount to $100,000. The total amount for this quarter will probably reach $1,500,000, the largest amount ever paid by one pension district in the United States. There were 75,000 pensioners on the rolls. Three thousand of this number drew their money here, and the remainder received their checks through the mail.

THE DARDANELLES.

Berlin, Sept. 12.—The North German Gazette, apropos of the Dardanelles incident, refers to the community of interest between England and the dreibund, adding: "Even if the interests of Great Britain were not everywhere coincident with those of the dreibund, they are most assuredly nowhere opposed to them. Wheresoever it can be shown that the interests immediately concerning England are really in danger it may be taken for granted that the question as to how far the dreibund is affected will be considered in the friendliest spirit."

A LIGHT SENTENCE.

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 12.—Harlan V. Winbrow, mate of the schooner Hester A. Walters, of Norfolk, Va., was to-day sentenced to six months in the county jail and a fine of $100 for having killed Henry Shepherd, a colored sailor, several weeks ago. Winbrow pleaded guilty of manslaughter. The spectators present were much surprised at the light sentence.

CROOKED ACCOUNTS.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 12.—President Coleman, of the Catholic Knights of America, is here investigating the accounts of M. J. O'Brien, treasurer of the order. Mr. O'Brien is out of the city, and President Coleman has taken charge of the office. Thus far in the investigation of the accounts there is a deficit of about $30,000, which, in the absence of Mr. O'Brien, is unexplained.

TROUBLE FOLLOWED HER.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 12.—Mary O'Neil, aged 11 years, a survivor of the Johnstown flood, who has been living at Ansonia with her brother, was fatally burned last night while playing near a stove by her clothing catching fire. Her parents were victims of the Johnstown flood.

ALIEN CONTRACT LABOR.

Boston, Sept. 12.—On the charge of having imported 22 aliens, not entitled to enter the country, Joseph M. Loucraft and Joseph Peter, of Bridewater, were held in $5,000 bail by United States Commissioner Hallett to-day. The men were brought from Canada to work in Loucraft's brickyard.

ACTION ON A STRIKE.

Halfax, N. S., Sept. 12.—The Painter's union last night decided to make the strike which began some weeks ago at Reardon's establishment a general one. The origin of the trouble was the employment by Reardon of more apprentices than the union rules allowed.

AWFUL DEATH.

Pittsburg, Sept. 12.—Last evening Jas. H. Barr, a painter, aged about 30 years, while engaged in painting his father's house in Wilkinsburg, fell from the ladder, a distance of seventeen feet and was impaled on the top of an iron pump. The sharp iron entered his back and penetrated the heart, causing instant death.

GAVE THE DOCTOR AWAY.

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 12.—Jesse A. Mason, who is under arrest as an accessory to the death of Mrs. Nora Tagney by abortion, made a confession last night implicating Dr. H. K. Jackson.

NEW NATIONAL BANKS.

Two Chartered and a Number of Applications Filed.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The comptroller of the currency's certificate authorizing the following national banks to begin business was issued to-day:

The Polk County National Bank of Bartow, Bartow, Fla., capital $50,000, and the Union National bank of Sioux Falls, S. D., capital $100,000.

The following applications for authority to organize national banks have been filed with the comptroller of the currency:

The Wooster National bank, Wooster, O., by C. V. Hard, Wooster, O., and his associates; the Farmers' National bank of Arkansas City, Ks., by H. T. Hatch, Arkansas City, Ks., and his associates; and the Seymour National bank, Seymour, Ind., by Wm. Acker, Seymour, Ind., and his associates.

WARM AT BINGHAMTON.

Flower Knocks Jones Out in His Own Town.

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Delegates to the county convention from the 13 wards were elected last night by the democrats. All the delegates are strong Flower men. Jones did not carry his own ward, the ward in which George F. O'Neil, the aspirant for the state treasuryship resides.

Jones' supporters attempted to carry the First ward caucus by storm. A large party, including democratic and republican workmen from Jones' scale works, gathered at the meeting place and a stormy time prevailed. For a time it seemed as if riot were imminent. Two sets of delegates were finally elected and quiet was restored.

CENSUS FIGURES.

Porter Comes to the Relief of Bleeding Kansas.

The Mortgaged Debt of the State Is One-Quarter of the Full Value of Its Real Estate.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The census office has issued a bulletin which gives the mortgage indebtedness of the state of Kansas by counties. The total assessed valuation of real and personal property in 1890, not including the value of railroad property, which is placed at $57,866,233, was $200,593,711.

The estimated true value is between $800,000,000 and $300,000,000. It is found that Kansas has a mortgage debt of $235,485,118, which does not include a state and railroad land contract debt of $7,661,718. This debt is 27 per cent. of the estimated true value of all taxed real estate. The average amount of debt per mortgaged acre is placed at $6.65.

Of the total mortgage debt, $167,145,609 is on acres, and $68,430,069 upon lots. Thirty-four per cent. of the total debt in force against acres on real estate in the western half of the state, where it is said values are low and where settlement was made but a few years ago. It is proposed to prepare a map showing the exact localities and the state of debt.

Superintendent Porter says the largest debt exists in the sections where there is the greatest prosperity, and where there has been an abundant improvement. The counties carrying the heaviest mortgage debt are: Sedgewick, $16,513,016; Wyandotte, $12,629,936; Shawnee, $11,182,069; Cowley, $7,527,418; Reno, $7,429,589; Sumner, $5,966,042; and McPherson, $5,040,949.

WHERE'S THE OTHER WILL?

Two Documents in the Hopkins Case.

Startling Announcements Made by Parties Who Want Part of the Forty Millions.

New York, Sept. 12.—Mrs. Mark Hopkins-Searles informed two persons four years ago that she had made a will in favor of several near relatives, whom she had befriended during her life.

This missing will, it is now claimed, was made about the time she married Mr. Searles. It specifically described, it is understood, the relative esteem Mrs. Hopkins had for certain persons, prominent among whom were the now disinherited son, Timothy Hopkins, and his wife, to whom was left one-half of the estate.

Nothing has heretofore been said by those interested in contesting the will which makes Mr. Searles the sole beneficiary of the existence of this important document. It is evident, however, from circumstances just brought to light, that the contents of this document form the fundamental basis of the claims now being made upon the estate. The liberal bequests to near relatives there named are cited to prove the real intent of Mrs. Hopkins before she married a second time. Meanwhile the executors intimate that affairs will be amicably settled.

COLD-BLOODED MURDER.

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—A Chinese laundryman named Hom Ah Tam was murdered here last night by some unknown assassin. He was sitting on a box outside his laundry smoking when the murderer placed a pistol close to his ear and shot him dead.

SHOT BY AN OFFICER.

Purcell, I. T., Sept. 12.—Wm. Cooley and Ross Riley were shot and badly wounded yesterday by United States marshals who were pursuing them. After being shot they surrendered. They are desperadoes who have committed a number of crimes.

TO MEET IN ATLANTA.

Cleveland, Sept. 12.—The Improved Order of Red Men finished their business to-day. Atlanta, Ga., was selected as the place where the next general council is to be held. There were no elections of officers, as all the present incumbents hold over until next year.

FOURTEEN LIVES LOST.

Fatal Accident to the Schooner Georgiana.

Captain and Crew Drowned by the Capsizing of the Craft While Under Tow.

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 12.—A Yarmouth special says that the schooner Georgiana, of that place, while being towed to Halifax, capsized, and the captain and crew were drowned. Most of the unfortunate men belong in Tusket Wedge, near Yarmouth.

The list of the lost is as follows: Capt. Eleaser LaBlanc, aged 25, of Tusket Wedge; Morrell Porter, R. A. LeBlanc, R. Surrett, F. A. Porter, Eugene Surrett, B. Boudrot, G. Porter and T. Porter, all of Tusket Wedge; Leonard Porter, of Plymouth; J. M. Surrett and George Surrett, of the same place; Isaiah Porter and Amile Boudrot, of Tusket Wedge; Augusto Surrett, of Pinchney's Point. The schooner was owned by H. and N. B. Lewis, of Yarmouth.

THE TOILERS AT WAR.

Canadian Tailors Stir Up Some Trouble.

Men Arrested and Sent to Jail.

Other People Take a Hand in the Matter and International Complications May Follow.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 12.—The lockout of union tailors in Windsor, which has been on several weeks, is assuming an interesting phase and may become of international importance.

The employing tailors have steadily shown their ability to get along without their old employes, whose demands were considered excessive, and the relations have been exceedingly strained.

Seven members of the union attacked a non-union tailor named Sandison Johnson and gave him a severe pounding. Although they were fined the affair caused feeling to run high among the employing merchant tailors who caused the arrest of James O'Dougherty, president of the union, John Coppin, and Max Peters on the charge of conspiracy, or, as the indictment read, of "persistently following and trying to compel Sandison Johnson from doing that which he had a legal right to do."

On the trial the defense showed that the prisoners had merely asked Johnson to join the union and assist the members in obtaining their rights from the employers.

This the court charges they had no right to do so long as it was obnoxious to the complainant. In sentencing the prisoners to one month's imprisonment in Sandwich jail, Judge Horne said that personally he would be in favor of imposing a heavy fine on the prisoners, but this he thought would not be sufficient punishment as all the fines would be paid by the international tailors' union and hence the crime would go unpunished.

This sternness is regarded on both sides of the river as a terrible blow to trades unions and all forms of organized labor, and a bitter fight is expected. The merchant tailors are possibly too much elated.

The trades unions of Windsor will appeal to all of Canada for help. They threaten to injure the merchants of Windsor by placing committees on both sides of the river to watch Detroit customers who purchase all kinds of articles in Canada and smuggle them over on the ferry boats.

Most of the trade of the Windsor merchant tailors is said to come from Detroit.

This the journeymen tailors say can be broken up by stoppings smuggling. The Detroit trade council has come to the assistance of their Canadian brethren by threatening to have the United States authorities enforce the alien labor law against the 1,000 or more Windsorites who come over to Detroit daily to earn a living.

JONES AND STEWART.

They Will Stump Ohio on the Silver Question.

Tiffin, Ohio, September 12.—In an interview concerning the plans, prospects, &c., of the people's party, Chairman Barnes, of the state executive committee, stated that among the speakers who will stump Ohio in the interest of the free coinage of silver are Messrs Jones and Stewart of, republican senators from Nevada.

The details of the arrangement under which they are to speak in the state, the number of addresses they are to deliver, &c., have not yet been completed, but the positive assertion is made that they will spend a large part of the month of October on the stump of Ohio.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

Its Affairs Grow More Tangled Each Day.

London, Sept. 12.—The correspondent of the Times at Paris referring to the action of the French police in searching the houses and offices of the promoters of the Panama canal and seizing papers connected with the work, asserts that the parliamentary committee ignored a host of petitions from all the principal shareholders asking the government to invite M. Christopie to try to save the Panama enterprise, he being the only member of the chambers likely to succeed. The committee, it was charged, ignored the petitions on the ground that compliance would injure the position of the Credit Foncier, and to gain time invented the idea of proposing an international canal.

THE KANGAROO BALLOTS.

It Is Causing Much Uneasiness in Many Counties.

Canton, O., Sept. 12.—The question as to whether or not county election boards have the right under the new law to purchase any form of poll books and tally sheets other than those recommended by Secretary of State Rvan, is one of great moment in this county, inasmuch as the board here purchased the poll books and tally sheets from a Dayton house. The contract for printing tickets has also been let.

At the time of letting the contract the matter was fully discussed by the board, but the members finally decided that under the law they could purchase such material as they deemed suitable.

FRIGHTENED TO DEATH.

The Sad Result of a Belling Party.

Tiffin, O., Sept. 12.—(Special)—At Fort Seneca, in this county, Mrs. Elvina Baumgardner, aged 80 years, was frightened to death Thursday night by the hideous noise made by a party of young men and boys who were engaged in belling a couple who had been divorced and remarried.

CHARGED WITH THEFT.

New York, Sept. 12.—F. A. Smith, of F. A. Smith & Co., brokers at 60 Broadway, was arrested to-day on a charge of grand larceny. The complainant is a prominent merchant of Poughkeepsie. He charges Smith with having stolen money given him by complainant with which to buy stocks on margin.

Smith's counsel said to-day that his client acknowledged that he had not executed the orders of his customer, but that Smith would make it all right. Smith was arrested by Policeman Case, of Poughkeepsie, on a bench warrant. He says the firm is solvent and the money will be refunded.

BOOMING THE SOUTH.

Boston, Sept. 12.—The Georgian delegation who have undertaken the task of booming the coming exposition at Augusta, gave an informal reception at the Thorndike which they will make their headquarters during their stay.

Among their callers were Mayor Evans of Lowell. He invited the delegates to be the guests of that city on Monday. A number of business men and manufacturers and a delegation from the chamber of commerce also visited the delegates.

BACK COUNTIES COMING IN.

Salem, Mass., Sept. 12.—Lyman Sherwood and Delia Sherwood, first cousins of Mrs. Searles, have been added to the list of the contestants of the will of that lady.

SILVER PURCHASE.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The treasury department to-day purchased 913,000 ounces of silver at 98 4-10 to 98 8-10 cents per ounce. The offers were 1,238,000 ounces.

ARE COUNTING THE NOSES

The Contest for the Speakership Grows Interesting.

Mills of Texas Seems To Be in the Lead.

World's Fair Influences Have Knocked Springer Entirely Out of the Race—The Coming Caucus.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Considerable gossip regarding the speakership of the next house of representatives has been in circulation here during the past few days.

There is no doubt that under the surface the question of the speakership has been attracting a good deal of attention in the more responsible and directing circle of politics for some time back. A caucus of the house of representatives, like a convention of delegates of people of any other kind, is always more or less problematical and is subject to changes, conditions—perhaps prejudices.

At this time it looks very much as if Mr. Mills of Texas would have a walkover for the nomination when the democratic caucus convenes next December. The New York, New England, New Jersey and Pennsylvania democrats have been discussing the question of the speakership quietly among themselves at irregular intervals and informal meetings during the past three or four months.

The New England men especially have paid attention to the speakership question. Several meetings have been held at which all the democratic members from New England were in attendance.

The first of these meetings were held in Boston, the second at Concord, N. H., the third at Newport, R. I., and the next one will be held at New Haven, Conn., in a few days. The New England delegation is laboring to vote as a unit for speaker, and the chances are that it will. Information has reached this city to the knowledge of your correspondent indicating that in all likelihood New England will be solid for Mills in the democratic caucus; that he will have very nearly two-thirds, if not all, of the New York delegation; New Jersey will be solid for him, and Pennsylvania, with one possible exception, will also enroll in the Mills column.

From the west, too, comes reports indicative of a desire to make the Texan speaker of the next house. Wisconsin, Minnesota and Montana will vote for Mills beyond a doubt. Assurances have been received here that Mills is the real choice of the Iowa and Michigan delegations. Indiana, Illinois and Missouri seem to be embarrassed because of local candidates.

Mr. Hatch of Missouri has a natural and commendable ambition to be speaker, and so has Mr. Springer of Illinois and Mr. Bynum of Indiana.

It is known here that at least eight of the Illinois delegation are not in favor of Springer for speaker, though they are willing t ogive him a complimentary vote, with the understanding that they are at liberty to abandon him after one vote.

Mr. Bynum, while outwardly a candidate himself and of course would be delighted to be made speaker, recognizes the fact that he cannot be made speaker the next time, and for some time back it has been no secret to people understanding the political situation that both he and his supporters are really for Mills.

It is also reported here, and with some show of authority, that four members of the Missouri delegation intend to vote for Mills; one will vote for Crisp, according to the same authority, and the rest will at least cast a complimentary vote for Colonel Hatch.

It is understood, of course, that all the information conveyed in this dispatch is in the form of rumor supposed to be reasonably well authenticated now in circulation here.

Colonel Hatch's popularity, not only with the Missouri delegation, but with all the old members of the house and with many of the new members, is conceded. That he would make an excellent speaker is conceded, but it is argued that Mr. Mills, because of his commanding position as the leader of the democratic minority in the last house, and his labors in the interest of tariff reform, is squarely entitled to the place.

It is not because they love Hatch less, but because they believe that the issue of tariff reform would be more emphatically presented by the election of Mills; that some of the Missouri members, from all accounts, will vote for Mr. Mills from the start instead of for Colonel Hatch.

Mr. Springer's candidacy seems to have dwindled down to a mere organship of the world's fair management. The world's fair people who promised congress a year ago most emphatically that they would not ask for an appropriation from congress, are now figuring on striking the national treasury for at least $5,000,000.

Justly or otherwise, it is understood here that Springer is the bellweather of that $5,000,000 strike.

It might as well be understood now as later on that all the indications are strongly against an appropriation of $5,000,000 or any other amount for the so-called world's fair or a loan or a gift, or anything that could be construed into a loan, a gift or an appropriation.

The managers of the fair, however, seem to think that if they could get Mr. Springer into the chair he would so construct the committees that, by his personal influence in legislation, the $5,000,000 appropriation could be made easy. Mr. Springer's chances for the speakership were never flattering, but since the world's fair management took up his cause his case seems to be hopeless.

It was stated in these dispatches several months ago that there were only two bona fide candidates for the speakership, and these were Mills and Crisp.

Some of the other candidates were playing for opportunity, luck of chance, others of them were merely advertising themselves and playing for committee recognition.

It has been a favorite trick of ambitious members for years back, to announce themselves as candidate for speaker, in order to have themselves heralded as the chief, most potent, most conspicuous member of a state delegation.

Strange to say, the other members of the delegation have been in the habit of tolerating this kind of thing, although it is notoriously to their disadvantage. It is not insinuated, of course, in this dispatch, that this motive is behind any of the candidates for speaker in the ensuing contest, yet nevertheless everybody in Washington considers nobody a real candidate for speaker except Mills and Crisp. The issue is between Mills and Crisp.

Mills represents a straightforward, bold course in favor of a reduction of the tariff; Crisp represents what he and his followers are pleased to call conservatism or a conservative course, or conservative action, or something always qualified by the word conservative, not only on the tariff question, but in all other legislation.

There is no need of humbugging the public about this question any longer. It is now within three months of the time when the speaker must be elected, and it is well that the people should understand that the fight is between Mills and Crisp.

One or the other of these gentlemen will be speaker—nobody else stands a chance of being selected. It is in the power, perhaps, of Springer and Hatch and Bynum and McMillin, if they can control their followers, to make Crisp speaker, but that is all they can do.

Neither of them can make himself speaker, nor if they unite could all of them make either of them speaker. There will be no dark horse elected.

It will be either Mills or Crisp, one representing tariff reform in accordance with the instructions of the people at the last elections, the other in favor of "conservatism," whatever that may mean; it is believed to mean a compromise course between what the late Samuel J. Randall wanted and what the people of the United States are at the present time demanding.

At the present time it looks very much as if Mr. Mills would have a walkover, or nearly so, when the caucus convened.

The New York, New England, New Jersey and Pennsylvania members, who have been paying a good deal of attention to the speakership question, making a good deal of inquiries regarding the standing and backing of all the candidates, seem to have arrived at the conclusion that Mills was of all others the man to wield the gavel in the next house.

The only way that Mills can be defeated is by the friends of tariff reform in the west holding aloof from him in order to compliment local candidates.

These observations may not be pleasing to some people, but the time has arrived when a candid explanation of the situation seems necessary.

BUSINESS IS BOOMING.

Encouraging Reports from All Sections.

Collections Are Better and Prices Stiffer—The South Shares in the Improvement.

New York, Sept. 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

All the returns of the condition of business are encouraging. There is no room for doubt about the improvement of trade. From nearly every city reporting there comes the same cheering information in trade, the same cheering information that business is better and prospects brighter.

At Boston business is increasing. At Philadelphia the tone of the iron market has much improved. Business is encouraging at Buffalo, decidedly improved at Cincinnati and Cleveland, and it may be noted that at eastern points generally some improvement is seen in collections.

Receipts of wheat at Chicago are five times those of last year, of corn double, of rye seven times, and of oats and dressed beef about a third larger, with some increase in wool; while a decrease of a third appears in barley and cured meats.

Dry goods sales in August were the largest ever known, the clothing trade is very large, with fair collections, and the shoe trade excellent. Money is plentiful for legitimate trade.

At Milwaukee business is satisfactory; at Minneapolis sales of lumber are large, with prices stiff, and receipts of wheat 1,400,000 bushels, against 800,000 last year; at St. Paul improvement is seen and prospects brighter; at St. Louis shipments of money to the cotton states are increasing, but the market is comparatively easy; at Denver trade improves, and also at Kansas City.

Even at the south the improvement is general, especially at Louisville, Memphis, Savannah and Atlanta. At New Orleans trade is active, rice being specially strong and money in good demand.

The enormous receipts of wheat have depressed the price, at one time below $1 per bushel in New York. At western points the receipts thus far have been much more than double last year's, and for this week have been 5,800,000 bushels in four days. The exports continue large, but the belief is growing that foreign crops are not quite so short as has been reported, though short enough to cause an unprecedented demand from this country.

Thus the price of wheat has fallen 5 1-2 cents during the week with sales of only 22,000,000 bushels. The fall since the highest point in August has been 16 cents here and 19 cents in Chicago, and this week there has been a semi-panic abroad, as the new crop presses heavily upon markets overloaded with American purchases. At Liverpool the price dropped 7 1-2 cents, and foreigners have ceased buying here. Corn declined but little, and oats only 1 cent. The market for cotton was stronger by about a quarter before the government report appeared, and has since advanced a little further. Pork products are higher and oil about 5 cents lower.

The great industries are making satisfactory progress. Production has been maintained for three months within about 10,000 tons weekly of the largest quantity ever reached, and the consumption can not be far behind. A larger demand is seen for finished products, especially for bar iron, and the plate mills are full of orders, but in rails no change is observed. Wool is selling fairly well at all the important markets and there is seen a better demand for dry goods, which gives much encouragement to manufacturers. The boot and shoe trade is progressing quite as well as it was a year ago, with fair prices and encouraging demand.

The financial outlook is clearer. Exports of merchandise from New York for the past two weeks have exceeded those of the same weeks last year by more than 50 per cent, while in imports there appears a decrease of about 20 per cent. The opening of Germany and Denmark to American pork products has lifted the price of pork 50 cents per barrel. With the greatest crops ever grown, and an unprecedented foreign demand for grain and meats, the prospect must be considered unusually encouraging.

The business failures occurring throughout the country during the past seven days number 214, as compared with a total of 217 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 193.

O'DONOVAN ROSSA.

It Would Be Risky for Him To Go Abroad.

New York, Sept. 12.—O'Donovan Rossa publishes in his newspaper, the United Irishmen, this week, some remarkable correspondence he has had with the state department relative to a passport that he wanted guaranteeing him freedom from arrest in Ireland, and which was refused him.

In answer to Rossa's first letter Assistant Secretary of State Wharton sent a passport in the usual form to Rossa inclosed in a letter in which he said: "The department cannot furnish you with a passport in any other form, and cannot give you a guarantee against arrest in foreign countries on criminal charges."

Rossa wrote back to Secretary Blaine that he understood there was a treaty between the United States and Great Britain which stipulated that an American citizen could not be held in prison in England for any political words or acts of his in this country, and that he wanted to know whether such protection was afforded an American citizen or not. He received the following reply from the assistant secretary:

"I have to state that there is no arrangement of any kind in force between the United States and Great Britain on the subject to which your letter relates."

VERA AVA IN CINCINNATI.

The Chicago Mystery Finds Another Chapter.

Believed That the Lady Is Ann O'Delia Diss De Bar.

She Relates a Strange Yarn of Being Abducted and Taken Out of Chicago While Unconscious.

Cincinnati, Sept. 12.—Miss Vera Ava, or Ann O'Delia Diss De Barr, or who ever she may be, has turned up in this city. She is the woman, it will be remembered, who dropped out of sight so mysteriously in Chicago after having entered a church, and for whose safety grave fears were expressed.

Miss Vera Ava, if her own testimony is to be credited, is in the Cincinnati house of detention. She is a rather large woman, apparently 38 years old, has light blue eyes and rather closely cropped hair, well sprinkled with gray.

She talks sometimes rationally and sometimes with wild incoherence. She says her name is Vera Ava, and that her native place is London, Eng., and lately she has been in Chicago, and somebody brought her from that city to this place, but who brought her and when she was brought she seems unable or unwilling to tell.

It was nearly 9 o'clock last night when this woman from the sidewalk at Ninth and Elm streets, this city, hailed a cabman and got in his cab and ordered him to drive her to the St. Nicholas.

She wore a black woolen dress, was in her stocking feet and was without a hat. From her waist to above her shoulders her body was bare. The St. Nicholas, the Burnett and the Gibson house all refused to receive her. In the cab at the Gibson the detective force took her case in hand and removed her at once to the house of detention.

Examination there revealed the fact that she hadn't a cent of money and not a scrap of paper on her person, and that all her effects were her black dress and her stockings.

She told the story fluently and consecutively, in elegant language. By way of introduction, she said she was a Roman Catholic and was starting four homes for homeless degraded children in Chicago.

Then she said this displeased Archbishop Feehan and he ordered her to a nunnery. She refused to go, and then he ordered her to appear before a council at the Jusuit College church on Twelfth street, last Wednesday. She went in her carriage. Mrs. Bolton, of 438 West Monroe street, was with her, and Tom was the driver of the carriage. Tom and Mrs. Bolton waited in the carriage outside.

Archbishop Feehan and Father Edwin Kelly were present. They presented her a paper to sign, which she refused to do, saying that, as a prospective American citizen she meant to use her money as she pleased. Father Kelly arose and said this has gone far enough, and at that moment two men came in at a side door and threw a cloth over her face.

After that she knew nothing more until she felt as if she was on the lake. She thinks that was last night, and that she had been overdosed with chloroform and water applied as a restorative.

The next she remembers was, she thinks, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when she was taken from the depot in a carriage to a certain place in this city, though she did not then know what city it was.

Here she stopped her story and went to praising the kindness she received at the house of detention in being allowed to remain in the office and not in the cell.

When asked: "Were you turned loose on the streets," she replied spiritedly. "No, indeed. I escaped, and will show Chief Deitsch what house they took me to," and here her narrative ended.

She said, however, that previous to Wednesday she had received an anonymous letter threatening that she would be treated as Dr. Cronin had been.

This she took to the chief in Chicago, but he was not in and she did not leave it. She was asked by telephone, later, plumply, if she was the Miss Diss de Bar of New York and she said: "No, sir; that is a gross mistake." She is a fleshy woman, has a fair skin and short, curly hair that comes down on her forehead to her eyes.

As there was no charge against her, and as the Chicago officers do not want her, she has been released by the officials.

A Strange Woman.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Mrs. Bolton, wife of the Rev. Dr. Bolton, of the Centenary Methodist church, with which Miss Ava became connected a short time ago, said in an interview to-day:

"Before you can fully enter into my reasons for believing that Miss Ava has met with foul play, you must understand what manner of person she was. Miss Ava was a highly educated woman from the English upper-middle class.

She has been an extensive traveler. She has a record for distinguished bravery during the Franco-Prussian war, and has seen active service with the ambulance on the field of battle. She was unmistakably a lady.

Her charities have already been spoken about. They were unquestionably genuine, and her interest in her mission work undoubtedly sincere. On Wednesday evening, when I accompanied her in her carriage to the church of the Holy Family, she showed me her wallet just before she alighted. It was literally crammed with $20 gold pieces. In addition she showed me about $4,000 worth of diamonds."

"'Swear,' she said, raising her right hand in a somewhat dramatic manner, 'that if ever I disappear you will not rest until you have found me, even if you have to ask all Chicago to join in the search. I did not swear, of course, but I promised her most earnestly that I would.

"A few days after we came to be acquainted she told me something of her family affairs. She said that she had enemies, and that her mother had been murdered.

"She seemed apprehensive that some such fate would overtake herself. She never said a word against the Catholic religion, from which she was a convert. She said she had spent many happy days as a religieuse, but desired a broader scope for charitable work than the seclusion of the cloister afforded her.

During her connection with that church she was sent twice to England on ecclesiastical missions. She was an excellent writer upon theological and economic subjects, and said that she had worked in the cause of Catholicism for many years with the pen.

"I honestly believe that on Wednesday evening Vera Ava left that carriage with all those valuables for some unknown but perfectly proper purpose.

"She may have wished to raise money on her diamonds in furtherance of her charitable designs, and have adopted the plan of simply passing through the church intending to return and rejoin me when she got through with her business.

"My present honest belief is that she has been decoyed by some unscrupulous villains into a safe place, and that she has been foully robbed or murdered."

"The strangest thing about this case," said Lieut. Shea, "is that this Miss Ava, who is written up a fakir, has refused money from those she interested in her charitable work. A caller at the station to-day, a minister, whose name I promised not to divulge, told me that a charitably inclined church member offered the woman $1,000, but she refused it, saying she had plenty of money. The woman had often stated that goods she shipped from England had been lost and that she had applied for duplicate freight certificates. Officers visited the custom house to-day, and were told by Deputy Collector Jewell that no such woman had been at the office or applied for duplicate receipts."

A curious feature of the mystery is that Miss Ava is reported to have said that she feared she would meet a fate similar to that of Dr. Cronin. Father Kelly, upon whom she called at the Holy Family church just prior to her disappearance, is the same clergyman the arrest of whose brother in St. Louis as a Cronin suspect caused a sensation. The brother was brought to this city in custody but speedily released, there being no proof against him.

WAR GROWS INTERESTING

The Financial Schemes of Mr. Foster Discussed.

Holding Back Army Funds to Redeem Bonds.

Every Conceivable Plan Is Being Worked to Hide the Awful Hole Made by the Billion Dollar Congress.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The policy inaugurated by Secretary Foster of holding back appropriations for the purpose of piling up enough money to meet the redemption of 4½ bonds has precipitated a bitter fight between the treasury and war departments.

There is a tremendous arbitrary power in the hands of the second controller and when he has a disposition to use it he can give the various disbursing officers a great deal of trouble.

Not long ago Second Controller Gilkeson got into a controversy with the navy department with relation to the pay of the Marine band, cutting off part of their pay. Now he has tackled the war department and there is a bitter war between him and Gen. Batchelder, the quartermaster general of the army.

The last congress appropriated $750,000 for the construction and enlargement of military posts, but Mr. Gilkeson notified the secretary of war that before the money could be turned over to that department for allotment between the several posts, in which the secretary of war has discretion, there would have to be a transfer settlement of expenditures made out of former appropriations, but according to the holding of the controller's office chargeable in this appropriation.

The secretary of war is given a lump sum for all military posts to be spent among them according to his direction. In addition to this appropriations are made specifically for the construction and completion of certain posts.

The secretary of war has held that money from the general fund could be expended on the new posts specifically appropriated for and appropriations have been apportioned according to this view.

The controller holds that this is not in accordance with the law, and that money spent in that way is chargeable to the appropriation of next year which is available.

In this manner near $3,000,000 which has already been expended out of the appropriations, the controller holds, must be deducted from the appropriations and that drafts for only the difference between this sum and the appropriation of $750,000 can be drawn.

The effect of this is to reduce the appropriation made by congress and to hold in the treasury a very considerable sum of money, which, though not expended in excess of any appropriations, was allotted differently from what the controller holds to be legal.

Just before Secretary Foster went away there was a conference on the subject between the secretary, Gen. Batchelder and Judge Gilkeson. There was a bitter contention between Gen. Batchelder and Judge Gilkeson, which lasted a long while and ended very angrily.

Gen. Batchelder insisted that he would go ahead with the work according to the terms of the law, and Judge Gilkeson declared that if he did so his accounts would be held up.

As Judge Gilkeson has the power arbitrarily to hold up the accounts and threatens to do so, the quartermaster general's department seems to be hopeless in the matter.

There is a general uneasiness among the disbursing officers of the various departments of the government on account of the stint of money.

As has been hinted at before, requisitions made upon the treasury department for money have been laid aside without approval that the money might be accumulated to meet the 4½ per cents that came due on the 2d of this month.

There was a conference between the president and the several cabinet officers on this subject, and it was there agreed that only such requisitions as could not by any possibility be delayed should be approved by Mr. Foster and that the departments would have to put up with the inconvenience caused by this policy.

Requisitions for river and harbor improvements, for building bridges, for public buildings, for agricultural schools and many other works have been held up in this way.

FOR THE TOILET.

There is no more useful or elegant article than Ayer's Hair Vigor—the most popular and economical hair-dressing in the market. It causes the hair to grow abundantly and retain the beauty and texture of youth; prevents baldness, heals troublesome humors of the scalp and keeps it clean, cool, and healthy. Both ladies and gentlemen everywhere prefer Ayer's Hair Vigor to any other dressing for the hair. Mrs. Lydia O. E. Pittsworth, Moody, Me., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for some time, and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and falling hair, so that I was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor, my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recommend the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor to any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair."

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a faint or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. WARN IN CALIFORNIA.

The BEE has received information from what seems unquestionable authority that Mr. Warn is at San Francisco, Cal., where Ed. Spear is also residing. He has been spoken of as being in a southern city, but it now seems certain that he is at the Golden Gate city.

THE PUGILISTS GET A DOSE.

The only case of any note in police court to-day were those of John F. Moore and Harry Kerwin for engaging in the prize fight Thursday night at the Lagrange street club house. Both plead guilty to the charge and were fined $50 and costs each and sent to the work house for 30 days.

ONLY ONE FAULT.

Only one fault can be found with the new picture, the battle of Gettysburg, at the Cyclorama building. The electric lights are so hung that they cast deep shadows of the frames of the lamps all over the big picture, spoiling the illusion. This can be remedied, as no such defect was noticeable in the old picture, the Merrrimac and Monitor.

WILL RESUME THE SESSIONS.

After the summer's vacation, the Toledo Preachers' union will meet Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the First Congregational church. It likely that at this meeting, talk on observations of the summer will be given by the pastors, and an interesting session may be anticipated.

A FULL FLEDGED DIRECTOR.

Edward R. Cooke, formerly physical director in the Toledo Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, is home on a visit. He comes from Springfield, Mass., where he has been finishing his studies in the Y. M. C. A. school of physical directors. He graduated with honors and is now considering offers from several associations to take up their physical work.

QUITE A DISTANCE FROM HOME.

The N. Haughton Foundry and Machine company have just received the order for the elevators for the large flouring mills being erected at Columbus, Ga. They have also this week booked an order from Dallas, Tex., besides several in Ohio and Michigan. Their elevators are standard all overy the country.

DEMOCRATIC CENTRAL CLUB.

The regular weekly meeting of the Lucas County Democratic Central club will be held this evening at the hall on the corner of Summit and Jefferson streets and every member is expected to be present. Matters of organization in the wards will be up for consideration. Several good ward clubs are well under way and steps will likely be taken to extend these useful aids to a successful campaign.

ANNIVERSARY OF ST. MARK'S.

St. Mark's Episcopal church on Collingwood avenue will observe the anniversary of its establisment by special services tomorrow. Lovers of the church ritual, accompanied with fine music, will no doubt find this a very enjoyable occasion, as much pains has been taken in this respect. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

INJURED AT THE O. C. DOCKS.

About 6 o'clock last evening two men, Kaiser Rutofki and John Mausen, were badly injured at the Ohio Central docks, by the upsetting of a two-ton bucket of coal which fell upon them. The former was cut about the head and the latter received some severe wounds. The men were taken to their homes and are doing well.

REMOVE THE HAY.

The statue of Gen. Steadman at the intersection of Summit and Cherry streets, has a most neglected and ragged appearance. When Gen. Steadman was alive there was no hay on him, but the statue looks like a farmer's barn just after the hay had been taken in. Sparrows find it a convenient place to nest, and not being disturbed, have made it general headquarters

TO STEP DOWN AND OUT.

County Auditor Vordtriede's term of office expires to-day, and on Monday he will step down and out and his successor Charles Jones, will take up the duties of the office.

Mr. Vordtriede has been tendered the secretary and treasurership of the Florida Phosphate Mining company, which position he will, undoubtedly accept.

THE SALT COMMITTEE.

A matter in salt rates that has been hanging fire for some time has at last been settled, as Toledo members of the freight committee were notified to-day that the application for a rate of 30 cents on salt in barrels of 300 pounds from Cleveland to upper Mississippi points on business destined beyond has been refused as the salt committee had reported adversely. The matter was taken up at the Toledo meeting of the salt committee.

ST. FRANCIS DE SALES SCHOOL.

Rev. Dr. Quigley and the councilmen of the St. Francis de Sales church have leased the J. D. Cook residence on Erie street. It is the purpose of these gentlemen to inaugurate a high school in the building for the members of the St. Francis de Sales parish. The school will be conducted by the Christian brothers, and the project is meeting with much favorable comment among members of the church.

NEW KIND OF SUGAR.

Berdan & Co. have just received a consignment of a new imported sugar which is a decided novelty. It is a crystal sugar, and comes from Germany. The grains are very large and regular, being cut into even squares and oblongs. It is an exceptionally pure sugar, and is clear as crystal, from which property it gets the name. This is somewhat more expensive than ordinary sugar, but bids fair to become popular.

MARRIAGE OF S. A. LASALLE.

Wednesday evening, S. A. Lasalle, of this city, was united in marriage with Miss Frances Friedlich, of Cleveland, at that city. The ceremony was performed at the Excelsior club, and was a double affair, for Joseph Rohrheimer and Miss Belle Friedlich were married the same evening. The ladies are sisters. The ceremony for the first couple was performed just before the last course of the dinner.

REGIMENTAL REUNION.

Wednesday next, September 16, Col. Thomas Kilby Smith's famous regiment, the Fifty-fourth, O. V. I., will hold its annual reunion at Plain City, Madison county, Ohio, in conjunction with Madison county Grand Army of the Republic encampment. There are a number of this gallant regiment living in Lucas county, and as the ranks are thinning yearly, it is to be hoped that every survivor will make it a point to embrace what may be his last opportunity to meet with the comrades of the tented field in the trying times of 1861-65.

LOOKS LIKE A GO.

The location of a beat sugar manufactory in Toledo is almost assured. Mr. A. K. Detwiller, who has the project in hand, received a letter from the parties to-day inquiring as to the cost of building material, labor, fuel and the probable acreage of beats to be contracted for. These points are evidently desired that an estimate can be made, and in all probability some definite conclusion in the matter will be arrived at very soon.

WILL SING AGAIN.

The Toledo Gesangverein, one of Toledo's best musical organizations, will resume rehearsals next Wednesday evening at the Steedman Business college, as per notice elsewhere. New members will be admitted, and matters for the benefit of the society discussed. The efforts of the body to please the public in the past were received with such favor that it is likely work will commence on music to be rendered early in the season. Some of Toledo's best vocalists are connected with the society, and it is hoped that others will attach their names to the roster.

SUIT OVER BANANAS.

Frank M. Chandler et al. filed suit in common pleas court to-day against Jacob Sezro to recover $509.41 on a note. It seems that Sezro is a fruit dealer at Norwalk, and bought goods of Chandler & Co., fruit dealers, of Cleveland. Last night the company's attorney roused Deputy County Clerk Prue and Sheriff Stuart out of bed and attached carload of bananas standing on the Lake Shore track. Sezro was in town to-day, but the sheriff couldn't find him. He evidently took an early departure.

WHAT BOYS CAN ARRANGE.

To-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock the first mass meeting for boys will be held at Y. M. C. A. hall. Addresses will be made by Rev. D. M. Fisk, of the First Congregational church, and Rev. E. W. Hunt, of the Ashland Avenue Baptist church. Fay Rogers, soloist of the Trinity church choir, will sing. A. D. Scammell, organist of the First Congregational church, will preside at the piano, and John Van Wormer, will be cornet precentor. There will also be music by the boys' orchestra. The meeting will be an enjoyable one and all are invited.

THE MORRISON FISHING CLUB.

The Morrison Fishing club will enjoy its annual week's outing at East Sister island the coming week. To-morrow the yacht Nellie will take the following gentlemen members of the club to the island: Dave Hanner, John Weber, Lewis Hanner, Will Kelley, John P. Bronson, James Brown, Gus Wendt, J. Morganthaler, John Beck and Councilman Albrecht. Thursday Charles Hanner, Chief O'Dwyer, James Sminburne, Ed Unbehaun, Frank Cole and Henry Peiter will go over, and Dave Hanner, Jim Brown and Johnny Beck will return. The boys expect a splendid week's sport.

MONDAY'S BIDS.

Bids for the following public improvements will be opened on Monday by City Engineer Wickenden and City Clerk Durian: Monroe street from old city line to Bancroft street, paving; Bridge street from Front street to dock line Maumee avenue, paving; Collingwood avenue from Detroit avenue to bridge over Ottawa river, paving; sewer No. 384, alley between Vance street and Forrer street, from Ewing to Hawley; sewer No. 383, alley between Nebraska avenue and Tecumseh street, from Junction avenue to Hawley street; artesian wells, corner Stickney avenue and Newton street, Earl and Rogers streets, Baker and Church streets, Harriett and Hamilton streets.

AN ANSWER FILED.

The defendants in the case of the Village of Maumee against Max Carl and others, filed an answer in common plea court to-day. The case is an action to enjoin the defendants from removing the buildings constructed on the property leased to them with the old court house for the purpose of instituting and conducting a window glass manufactory. The defendants abandoned the lease and attempted to take the improvements with them, and were restrained from so doing. They claim that the lease contained a clause wherein the defendants were to be supplied with gas for fuel which was not supplied, and they were compelled to quit.

AT THE NEWSBOYS' HOME.

The inmates of the Boys' home had a jolly time at the home last evening. The entertainment was conducted by the Misses Whitaker, Le Barin, Tillinghast, Wilson, Biglow, Randolph, Saltonstall, and Mesdames Tillinghast, Cronise, Brown, Biglow, Hitchcock, Whitaker and Wilhelm, and consisted chiefly of music. Miss Cole played accompantments on the piano to sacred songs and ballads, in which all joined in singing, much to the enjoyment of the boys. Lunch of ice cream and cake concluded this part of the evening's fun, after which the boys retired to the schoolroom and enjoyed themselves on their own resources, while Mrs. Poole, the matron, showed the guests about the home.

TOLEDO WILL MAKE THEM.

It will be remembered that the board of elections awarded to the Plumbly Portable Iron Booth company, of Buffalo, N. Y., the contract of supplying 27 of the voting booths as required by the new law.

Mr. Plumbly arrived in the city today and is preparing to erect the booths according to contract. The buildings will not be shipped from Buffalo, but will be manufactured in Toledo. Mr. Plumbly stated this morning that he was going to arrange with Toledo parties for the construction of all the booths to fill the Toledo contract, and all the contracts in the state of Ohio as well.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Elsewhere appears the official call for the democratic county convention to be held next Saturday. According to the apportionment made by the committee, there will be 150 delegates in the convention, requiring 76 votes to nominate. The different precincts in the wards and townships are grouped for delegates, and the county committee has will designate a place where the primary can be held. The supervisors will be announced as soon as the list is completed. Hours of voting have been fixed from 7 to 9 o'clock, which affords an opportunity to every democrat to cast his vote, and the vote of none other can be received. The delegates will convene at Walbridge hall. It will be noticed that a member of the county central committee is to be chosen in each ward and township.

DECIDEDLY UNTRUE.

Bert S. Garver, of Fremont, on Judge Grayson Mills' Candidacy.

Mr. Bert S. Garver, of Fremont, a member of the judicial committee, is in the city to-day and during a conversation with a Bee on political topics said:

"The statement made that the bar of this district would oppose the candidacy of Judge Grayson Mills, is untrue. The republican party will oppose him and that will be the extent of the opposition. Judge Mills, during the time he has been on the bench, has shown that he is made of the right kind of material, and the democracy of the district will sustain him. There is no opposition to him from democrats, for had this been the case he would have had opposition at the convention which nominated him."

"Will the democratic majority be increased in Sandusky county this year?"

"We trust that it will, although it is rather early yet to tell much about that. The election is several weeks away and we cannot predict what will occur in that time."

SUFFERING ON THE SEA.

Sharks Attack a Shipwrecked Party.

The Schooner General Banning Brings Sad News from the Western Islands.

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—Capt. Spring, of the schooner General Banning, which arrived here yesterday from the Flents island with a cargo of cocoanuts, reports that while loading his cargo the vessel was twice blown out to sea by severe storms. On the first occasion about one hundred natives were on board, and they hastened ashore in canoes.

The second time several canoes were upset and the occupants thrown into the water. The water swarmed with sharks, and many of the natives were torn limb from limb before they could be picked up by other canoes.

One young fellow plunged into the water with a long knife to save his father, but both were drawn down and torn to pieces. A young girl had almost reached a canoe when a shark seized her and dragged her down.

Out of 38 persons thrown into the water eight were killed by sharks and one man had a leg bitten off.

WEST AGAIN IN COURT.

He Wants a Receiver Who Will Give Him a Show.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Another bill was filed against the Chicago Times company yesterday by James J. West. The defendants are the Chicago Times, H. J. & H. C. Huiskamp, Frank S. Weigley, George M. Pullman, N. B. Ream, the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, and J. J. Mitchell. The bill is suppressed until this morning, but the attorneys for defendants were served with notice.

It claims that West owns 6,571 shares of stock of the Times company, being a majority, and that the Huiskamps own 1,240 shares. The petitioner asks for a receiver to represent all parties in interest and for an accounting and return of bond not issued for bonafide claims and that the unlawful bonds be cancelled.

YOU CAN'T TELL.

Louisville, Sept. 12.—President Phelps, when questioned to-day about the reports emanating from Milwaukee, that the Louisville and Columbus clubs would be dropped next year said: "There is no truth in the matter at all. Louisville and Columbus have stood by the association through all its fights and you may rest assured that the association will stand by these clubs now. Both cities will be represented in the association next year."

FIFTY WERE DROWNED.

Rome, Sept. 12.—A dispatch from Athens says that a corrected estimate of the number of persons drowned as a result of the collision bstween the Italian Messageries company's steamer Taormina and the Greek steamer Thessalie, off Cape Sunium, shows that 50 persons lost their lives by the sinking of the former vessel. Of this number ten were saloon passengers.

House Furnishings.

There is nothing that can be put into a house that will make it so attractive and homelike as bright carpets, rugs and draperies. This being an established fact it only remains that the intending purchaser should know where to go in order to have the advantage of a complete stock to select from and to be assured of fair and courteous treatment. Every visitor at the exposition this week has been charmed with the artistic display of fine carpets, draperies and rugs made by the well known house of Sterling & Co. The goods shown were only an index of the complete stock carried by this large house, and Manager Sisson invites everybody to come and see the new things at headquarters, 408 and 410 Summit street.

LOCAL HAPPENING.

They linger for hours looking at the wonderful Battle of Gettysburg, corner Jefferson and Michigan.

James Beyley and Wm. Evans were arrested last evening while sleeping in an orchard in Ironville. They were taken to the police station and locked up. As no charge was placed against them, they were discharged.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lozly, applied in probate court for a writ of habeas corpus, to get possession of Maggie Lozly, their niece, whom they claim is being restrained of her liberty by Lucy Lozly, her step mother. The case was continued one week.

In police court yesterday afternoon the entire time was taken up by the Joseph Stash, saloon case. The case was given to the jury at 5 o'clock. They spent the entire night locked up in the court room trying to agree, and up to the hour of going to press had not agreed on a verdict.

Marriage licenses were issued to-day to the following: Christ Sass and Lizzie Peuhl; Charles Borbam and Charity L. Serton; Moses McMurphy and Margaret Straight; George C. Heath and Estella Curtice; Oscar Taubity and Rosa Miller.

WANAMAKER'S REPORT.

He Will Discuss One-Cent Postage and Postal Telegraphy.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Three of the subjects which the postmaster-general will discuss in his forthcoming annual report are one-cent postage, free delivery in small towns and postal telegraphy.

Upon the first subject the postmaster-general will refer to the large number of petitions that he has received during the past year for the establishment of the one-cent rate.

Mr. Wanamaker will not recommend such a change in the postal laws, but will lay all the facts in his possession before congress for that body to act upon.

In that part of the report which will treat of the extension of free delivery to small towns, Mr. Wanamaker will speak very positively. He expects to show that the present extension of that system on its present limited scale has paid for itself.

From that he will argue in substance that, as it is a good and inexpensive convenience, the country ought to have more of it. He will again urge upon congress the advisability of the establishment of a United States postal telegraph system. That is a project of which he is much enamored.

SAN SALVADOR'S FALL.

The Loss of Life Will Reach into the Hundreds.

Of Three Hundred and Twenty Houses in Comesagua Only Eight Now Remain Standing.

New York, Sept. 12.—The Herald's San Salvador dispatch says that about forty persons were killed and sixty more or less injured in the earthquake which occurred early Wednesday mroning.

Reports from outside the city are coming in slowly but it is believed that the mortality list will reach into the hundreds. The panic has now pretty nearly subsided, but earthquakes, by turn feeble and violent, continue at irregular intervals.

Everybody expects the climax to come on September 21 on account of the equinox, as experience shows that that phenomeno neverts a great influence on local earthquakes. It is not unlikely that the city will be made a total wreck.

The details of the ruin of the towns in the axis of the earthquake are very meagre. Of 320 houses at Comisgua only eight remain standing. The loss of life there is great.

CANADIAN FISH LAWS.

Some Concessions Made to the Americans.

Our Boats Will be Allowed to Put Into Port in Storms and Care for the Sick.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 12.—The Dominion government has made some new regulations in regard to foreign fishing vessels in Canadian waters.

By their terms a fishing vessel entering a port for shelter may anchor and remain in such port for 24 hours without reporting, providing she does not communicate with the shore.

A foreign merchant vessel sudly registered as such, may enter and report inward to any port of Canada, and her master may purchase fish and bait or other supplies and report and clear outward for a foreign port.

A foreign fishing vessel, having a Canadian license, may also report in like manner, and may purchase fish and bait and other supplies for ship's use.

Sick or disabled seamen may be landed, but permission to ship other men must be obtained in every case fro mthe minister of customs.

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

The market quotations in the BEE are compiled from United Press special dispatches and from reports received by the Toledo Produce Exchange, and specially arranged by Mr. Denison B. Smith, secretary of the Exchange.

OFFICE OF THE TOLEDO BEE, TOLEDO, O., Sept. 12.

London wheat market opening quiet, steadier. Liverpool wheat firm; corn steady.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 8,246,666 bu, compared with 384,467 bu on the same day last year.

The directors of the Chicago board of trade and the Western Union telegraph company, yesterday came to an agreement, by which the telegraph company, returns to the floor of the Exchange upon a nominal rent, but are prohibited from collecting and sending out market quotations, directly or indirectly, and only doing a telegraph business for the board. In the agreement the telegraph company restores the old rate to New York. The question is, if old rate will be restored at Toledo!

In the year ending August 31, Minneapolis produced 7,434,068 bbls of flour; in 1890, 6,863,015 bbls; ten years ago the output was 3,142,972 bbls. The export on last crop was 2,576,545 bbls, and 2,091,215 bbls the previous year.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 862,199 bu in excess of the corresponding two Saturdays in 1890.

The receipts for the week at eight principal western points are wheat 7,086,000,000 bu, corn 2,826,000 bu, oats 2,822,000 bu. In the previous week the movement from the same points was wheat 7,384,000 bu, corn 3,615,000 bu, oats 3,543,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1890 wheat 2,347,000 bu, corn 2,385,000 bu, oats 2,077,000 bu.

The movement to these eight points—see table herein—are representative. If you enlarge the number you duplicate the movement more or less.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were 584,938, with flour to an aggregate of 650,000 bu.

The exports from four Atlantic ports for the week were wheat 2,856,000 bu; corn, 208,000 bu; oats, 177,000. In the previous week the movement was wheat 4,867,000 bu; corn 738,000 bu; oats 160,000 bu. The decrease in wheat is a million bus.

English markets as reported herein are somewhat lower and dull.

London weather has greatly improved of late, and the free movement of wheat on this side, taken together, has been so assuring as to depress prices, but no hope is entertained that these conditions will prove permanent. The belief is that England and Europe must look to America for supplies.

In the ratio that the markets are weak and decline, so do estimates change to meet the increase of bear sentiment. Beerbohm and others can now find much more wheat than could be discovered a few weeks since. Dornbusch makes the deficiency precisely match the surplus. All that kind of squatting to sentiment, destroys the dependence to be placed on any of these tables.

We have to bear record to another dull and weak day in the grain markets in this country. Prices are lower all around. The low price and dull markets for flour has come to be a discouraging feature in the deal but it is about the only bear element we know of. Receipts are free, but they always are at this time of year. Now is the time for accumulations for the winter deman on both sides of the ocean, but there is no confidence, no sand, no hope. American dealers are demoralized. Red winter wheat in Liverpool has been depressed to a point where it is a good purchase for a profit. It is 11c per bushel below California and it would be profitable to upset the schemes of English dealers to depress their quotations so as to purchase our wheat for nothing. That is what they are doing just now.

New York closed weak for both wheat and corn. September wheat lost 1⅝c and December the same; September corn lost 1c and October ⅝c.

In Chicago December wheat lost 2⅜c and October corn 2c; September rye closed at 87c.

In Toledo there has been a fair amount of trading reported in wheat futures, but at a sharp decline in prices. Opening trades were at about 1c decline, but it was increased to 2½c on December and 2c for cash wheat. On the call December wheat sold at $1 00⅝@1 01, and closed at $1 00⅞. After the call October sold at 96⅜ to 95¼c at close; December sold at $1 00⅝ to 99c at close; January sold at $1 01; May at $1 06¾@1 06¼, closing at $1 06.

Cash wheat was not in sharp request. No 2 soft sold at 95¾c and closed at 94¾c; No 3 soft at 93c to 92c; No 4 soft at 87c; rejected No 1 at 87c; No 2 at 74c.

Corn—No 2 at 64c.

Rye was nearly steady; No 2 at 91c; No 3 at 88½c; rejected, 77c.

Clover seed was cheaper; December at $4 70@4 62½; September and October at $4 62½.

Democratic County Convention

The Democrats of Lucas county are requested to meet in the various wards and townships, at one place to be designated by the County Central Committeeman, on Friday evening, Sept. 18, between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock, to vote under the primary system for a member to the County Central Committee and delegates to the county convention, to be held at Walbridge Hall, on Saturday, Sept. 19 at 10 a m, which will nominate

Three Representatives to the Legislature,

Our esteemed contemporary over on the corner is again bothering itself about Senator Brice, and insists that he shall not be seated. Poor, worrying soul, how badly it will feel when the Senator assumes the duties of his high office in December.

The weekly review of trade presents an encouraging condition, with a bright outlook for the rest of the fall, due almost entirely to our unprecedented crops and the foreign demand for the same. Yet the failures for the week were 214, while for the corresponding week last year they were 193.

The free schools which were opened in England last Monday, for the first time in its history, are not well attended. It looks as though to make the schools as useful as they should be for their cost it will be necessary to amend the free education act by adding a provision for compulsory attendance.

Delegate Kenefick of Erie county raised a storm of hisses in the New York republican convention when he opposed the nomination of Fassett and prophecied that the collector as a gubernatorial candidate would prove the Folger of 1891. Two months from now it is more than likely Mr. Kenefick will have been proved a true prophet.

Russian mothers are exposing their children to diphtheria in the province of Tambof, where it is epidemic. They prefer to see their little ones die quickly of disease rather than linger on in the slow dissolution pangs of starvation. What a suggestive glimpse is this at the misery, destitution and despair that have seized upon the wretched inhabitants of that most wretched country.

The International Agricultural congress assembled at Hague this week has passed resolutions condemning Henry George's land theories, pronouncing them "dangerous to agricultural progress, to the stability of rural communities, to the morality of the government, and to the pecuniary interests of states." The congress seems unaware how unnecessary it has now become to oppose the George theories. They are being killed fast enough in the hands of their friends.

The endeavors of some of our republican exchanges to prove that the high tariff has nothing to do with the reduction of wages at Fall River, and is not responsible for the overstocked market for cotton goods, are futile. The way in which all good in business conditions is claimed to be the result of protection, while all bad conditions are denied or laid to other causes, which is the campaign of McKinleyites in other states as well as in Ohio, is worse than childish. It is maudlin.

There should be no confusion and no chicanery in relation to those provisions of the Australian ballot law which must be attended to by election boards. The demand for the ballot law was so unmistakable that its enactment could not be shirked. Neither can its provisions be evaded or misinterpreted with any safety to those who would undertake such a course. Never in the history of this commonwealth were its people so united for anything as in their demand for a free and absolutely secret ballot. The temper of the people is unchanged, and they must not be thwarted.

The New York World is authority for the statement that a canvass of the 771 delegates in the New York republican convention showed 645 of them were openly for Blaine in 1892, and only 16 were found who would openly express a preference for Harrison. And yet this was an administration convention, from Platt and Fassett down. Considering which the World asks who is the head of this administration, any way? Sometimes this is a question hard to answer, and again it seems certain the name of the chief executive is Harrison and his other name is Russell.

Those who take some interest in the solution of the problem of Hebrew emigration display much ignorance as to the condition under which the Hebrew has been tolerated in Russia when they ask: "If a Jew will not dig in Russia will he dig in Argentina or Canada?" The Jew has not been a farmer in the land from which he is now being expatriated for the very good reason that the Russian laws forbade his owning freehold or cultivating a rood of land. The intention of Baron Hirsch to settle exiled Jews of Russia in agricultural colonies is doubtless in large measure the result of that philanthropist's desire to create for them in new lands the feeling of home which is absolutely dependant upon rights in the soil, and which is denied the Hebrew in many so-called civilized countries.

The friends of Dan Ryan, secretary of state, are at a loss to understand why he acted so hastily in closing a contract with a stationery firm to furnish all the poll books and tally sheets for the coming election. The law imposes upon him the duty of approving a form, but no business man of judgment would so construe the law that the secretary of state is obliged to award the contarct to any particular firm. And it is surprising that he should adopt a copyright form which he knew no other firm than the owner of the copyright could furnish. We know Mr. Ryan well, and do not believe he would commit a dishonorable act, hence the great surprise at his course in this tally sheet business. Somebody has successfully worked a job that promises better returns than the famous ballot-box scheme, which was given daylight two years ago. It is hinted that there is a republican trick in the transaction by which the party hopes to get the law before the supreme court to be declared unconstitutional by that partisan body.

FOSTER'S DILEMMA.

There is probably not a citizen of the United States with any understanding of finances who will not admit that, had President Cleveland succeeded himself, and the conservative and economical policy of his administration been continued through another four years, there would have been a sufficient surplus in the United States treasury this year to redeem the 4 1-2 per cent. bonds when they matured. The change of administrations and policies and the reckless extravagance of the Fifty-first congress virtually beggared us. Under present circumstances it is possible the secretary of the treasury can meet the emergencies which press upon him in no better way than by the schemes he is attempting. It is none the less humiliating to patriotic and honest men that Secretary Foster finds it necessary to resort to subterfuges, in conducting the business of the United States, which would be condemned in any private enterprise.

Certainly the maturing 4 1-2 per cent. bonds which cannot be extended must be redeemed. That the money for this purpose is not in the treasury unappropriated to other use is equally certain. The requisitions for internal improvements, for public buildings, for agricultural schools, have been withheld, and now it seems the war and navy departments are embarrassed and annoyed because funds voted them must be diverted for use in the bond payments.

But what is Secretary Foster to do? He cannot take the United States into the bankruptcy courts. He can find a treasury surplus to figure in his monthly misstatements, but if the same surplus is not really in the treasury the figures on paper avail him nothing in settling the nation's debt. He is probably doing the best he can do in a very awkward situation, and if his transactions are a little shady he has to thank his party, who have made good their cry of 1888: "To h—l with the surplus."

NORTHWESTERN OHIO POINTERS

Celina democrats have organized an enthusiastic campaign club.

The republicans of Hancock county will hold their convention next Saturday.

The Ottawa county democratic convention will be held at Genoa, September 19.

The republican senatorial convention of the Thirtieth district will meet at Norwalk September 25.

Johnson, the republican candidate for sheriff of Van Wert county, has lived in that county but little more than one year.

The democratic convention of the Twenty-seventh and Twenty-ninth joint senatorial district, will be held at Ashland, September 17.

The democracy of Huron county was never in better shape. There is absolute harmony in the party, and a large Campbell club has been organized.

Capt. Thomas Mawer, of Wood county, is of the opinion that Diver, the democratic candidate for representative down there, will be elected by a handsome majority.

The republicans of Mercer county recently made an effort to fuse with the people's party in that county, but the latter refused to enter into any alliance of that kind.

Hon. W. J. Bryan, "the boy congressman," of Lincoln, Neb., will spend two weeks in Ohio, stumping for Gov. Campbell, and will make a couple of speeches at Northwestern Ohio points.

Capt. O. P. Norris, the Wood county republican mass convention candidate for representative, withdrew from the race yesterday, leaving the field to Diver and James. The trick by which he was turned down was a scurvy one, which his friends will resent. Diver will be elected.

It is now the self-assumed task of certain republican newspapers to malign Judge Grayson Mills, whom Gov. Campbell appointed to fill a vacancy, and who has been nominated and will be elected to the place he now fills so satisfactorily. The principal reason for the abuse is that Judge Mills is an unflinching democrat, although never an extreme partisan. There is no doubt of his triumphant election.

FROSTS DUE NEXT WEEK.

So Says Professor Foster in His Report.

A Heavy Storm to Cross the Country in a Few Days.

The Western Prophet Has a Scheme He Would Like to Have the National Government Adopt.

Special to the Bee.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 12.—My last letter gave forcasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from Sept 8 to 12, and the next will be due to leave the Pacific coast about the 14th, cross the Rocky-Allegheny valley from the 15th to 17th and reach the Atlantic coast about the 18th.

It will be at its greatest force in the eastern states about the 17th or 18th, when it will make a record as more than an ordinary storm.

Destructive frosts will follow this storm, especially in the western states, and will reach much further south than is usual for the time of year.

This storm wave and the one following it will be what has been popularly termed equinoctial storms, as they will occur when the earth is near its equinoctial. Not the greatest storms of the year, but notable weather events were calculated for September, and I will be greatly surprised not to see long accounts in the newspapers, with display heads, relating notable weather events.

Weather and Science Notes.

I have now completed all arrangements for giving lessons in meterology by mail. These lessons will be given to individuals or clubs at $2.50 for 13 lessons.

In a club of five this will cost the members only 50 cents each. No person must be admitted into these clubs who is not a subscriber to this paper and each must keep a file of my published weather letters.

Each lesson will consist of a weather map, two astronomical illustrations and a letter of special instructions. I have a good number of subscribers to begin with and members can begin the studies at any time in the future.

My long range weather forecasts have stood the test for a number of years, and many persons, especially those interested in agriculture, fruit raising, coal mines, ice houses, etc., are in favor of adding this feature to the national weather bureau.

I would not desire to make the officers of the national weather bureau responsible for my theories of weather changes, because they know nothing about the principles upon which my forecasts are based, and for the same reasons I would not accept any position in the weather bureau that would prevent me from freely presenting my views.

I am not begging the people of the Uniter States for government support and I will enter into no log-rolling scheme for that purpose.

My work is giving me a good support and I am not dissatisfied with my efforts and opportunities. But there would be some advantages to the public and toward perfecting a system of long range weather forecasts in establishing a bureau of agricultural meteorology.

I estimate that such a bureau can be put into operation at an expense of $15,000 annually. One man cannot cover all the ground and give to the subject that careful study necessary to perfect the system and make it of practical utility to all interests.

There are three natural divisions of labor in these long-range forecasts and each of these divisions should have a man at its head peculiarly fitted for the work.

One of these departments includes the periodical storm waves that cross the continents, the changes of the weather accompanying them and the cold waves, hot waves and frosts.

Another department would include rainfall and drouths and a third department would give special attention to plant life, making estimates of the effects that coming weather will have on the growing crops of the world. If we could know the future of the weather farmers would better know what kind of crops to plant.

In order to make this bureau of agricultural meteorology accountable directly to the people and prevent it from becoming a tool in the hands of cereal speculators I propose that its chief be elected biennially by the lower house of congress and that the chief appoint his clerk and two assistants.

Should such a bureau be established I would probably be a candidate for the first place and Prof. Blake, of Topeka, Ks., would be my choice for the department of rainfall and drouth. He is a remarkably well-informed man on these subjects, besides being a man of very considerable ability in other matters. My choice for the department of plant life would be Prof. Mansill, of Rock Island, Ills. He is well informed in astronomy, meteorology, geology and chemistry and would be a valuable man in that work.

This department bureau would use the information gathered by the present weather bureau and as it would not make daily weather predictions there would be no conflict between it and the weather bureau officials.

Let the latter pursue their work. At most there could only be a rivalry between the two systems and the public would soon determine which can furnish the most valuable weather forecasts.

Melbourne, the Australian weather-maker, has moved his operations to the western arid regions. I cannot intelligently discuss his efforts for want of information which he has not yet given the public.

I have not doubted that rainfall may be produced both by explosions and by the discharge of gasses into the atmosphere but there is a serious question, because of the expense, as to either of these being practical.

From the published descriptions of Melbourne's efforts he must use some kind of a gas which either greatly expands in coming in contact with the atmosphere or that causes the atmosphere to rapidly contract.

Expansion and condensation are the means used by nature as the origin of force and the rain-makers must necessarily adopt one of the two.

I can only say that Melbourne should have every opportunity and encouragement to show his theories to be practical.

W. T. FOSTER.

JUDGE COOLEY'S RESIGNATION.

The interstate commerce commission sustains a most serious loss in the retirement of Judge Cooley. Among the admirable acts of the Cleveland administration, none gave more general satisfaction than Judge Cooley's appointment to a place on that important bord.—Philadelphia Times.

Judge Cooley's enforced retirement from the interstate commerce commission by reason of broken health is much to be regretted both on individual and public grounds. To the commission, of which he was the chairman, it will mean a serious loss, for his judicial qualities have been of inestimable value in giving shape and efficiency to its arduous labors.—Philadelphia Record.

The resignation of Chairman Cooley, of the interstate commerce commission, is to be sincerely regretted. He is a profound lawyer, and his admirable attainments and high personal character have rendered him conspicuously useful in the position which he vacates. The withdrawal of such a person from the public service is always to be deplored, for as a rule men of Judge Cooley's stamp are not seeking for official station and are not easily persuaded to make a sacrifice of their personal interests to serve the people. The president will be indeed fortunate if he succeeds in replacing the retiring chairman with a person of equal character and ability.—Kansas City Star.

HIS GREATEST DANGER.

Senator Sherman's greatest danger is that he may be ground between the Democratic and Foraker mill stones.—Washington Post.

DONATION PARTY

Calls at the Albany Street M. E. Church Parsonage.

Last evening about eight o'clock forty people solemnly marched to the parsonage in North Toledo and uncermoniously entered the house of Rev. C. M. Gardner, and when the reverand gentleman tried to escape from their presence they forcibly detained him, but when he explained that he wanted to put on his shoes, they allowed him to do so. The party were all armed, some with potatoes, others with sugar, tea, coffee, rice, eggs, beefsteak, soap, etc., and two ladies actually carried a quilt. The only one, however, who had concealed weapons was Rev. J. H. Bethards, of St. John's, and when he found that there was no war or tempest in the air, he delivered them over to Mr. and Mrs. Gardner with about these words:

"Brother and sister Gardner, in behalf of your friends of Albany Street, I present you this money and the other donations brought in as a token of their affection and esteem for you. I would also present you with more of the same quality and in the same spirit from some of the members of St. John's church.

In conclusion Mr. Bethards commended both pastor and [illegible] to Divine guidance, leaving a very pleasant memory with those with whom he had met.

After a light lunch was served and kindly greetings, the company departed feeling that Rev. Gardner had been successfully interviewed and he had not refused to open his mouth.

HERE IS A LIVELY GO.

Flickinger Says Romeis Has No Brains.

Heller Plays the Thimble-Rig Racket But Is Caught in the Act—Flickinger for Sherman.

The sensation of the hour in local political circles is the fact that Flickinger has gone squarely back in his promses to Jacob Romeis.

It will be remembered that Romeis nominated Flickinger at the recent convention, and it is not denied that the nomination was thus made upon the candidate promising to oppose Sherman's re-election to the United States senate.

There are fifty republicans in the city who know that such a promise was given, and yet in the face of this fact Flickinger repudiates, or rather denies, having made it.

Mr. Romeis will hardly believe, perhaps, that the man he nominated could be guilty of such perfidy, but the Bee is in a position to give Mr. Romeis all the proof he desires.

It was on Labor day, and the speakers were Mr. Flickinger and a prominent county official, whose popularity was shown by the great vote he received at the lasst spring election.

"I am for Sherman myself," said the C. O., "but there is some question as to where you stand, Mr. Flickinger."

Now the statesman has been a recognized Sherman man, but recently went over to the Foraker camp with the Ford-Kumler faction, and this was simply a bluff.

"There should be no question as to where I stand," was Flickinger's prompt response. "I am for Sherman first and last and all the time."

"It was said that you promised Romeis to oppose Sherman?"

"I never even intimated such a thing to Romeis. It is a pure fabrication."

"That is strange. Romeis himself told me that you were opposed to Sherman, and that was the reason he nominated you."

Flickinger drew himself up to his full height, and said deliberately and emphatically:

"Romeis is a fool. I cannot give him what God failed to endow him with—brains. He either misunderstood or deliberately misinterpreted a simple statement I made to him."

"Then you never said you would oppose Sherman?"

"I never did."

Should Mr. Romeis desire to further investigate these facts he can get them substantiated by a number of his personal friends.

Mr. Heller, too, is in a box. There is a gentleman in the city who affirms that he was present at two meetings—one of Sherman men and the other of Foraker's friends—at both of which Heller faithfully promised to support both Sherman and Foraker.

The Bee asks Mr. Heller to deny this statement, if he can.

SOMEWHAT STRANGE.

If it is true the McKinley bill has caused misery in England, it's strange they are not making such appeals for contributions of money there as are being made for the Ohio sufferers among the protected monopolists of this state.—Philadelphia Record.

AMERICAN PAUPER LABOR.

The McKinley price for making trousers in Chicago is six cents a dozen pairs. The girls who receive this munificent remuneration are not voters now are not likely to live long enough to avail themselves of any change in the suffrage law. —Detroit Free Press.

SECURE AGAINST DEFILEMENT.

No wonder the Ohio democrats are in a sanguine mood. Ohio has an Australian ballot law now, and though corruption and rancid "fat" may ooze through the canvass, the ballot-box itself will be secure against defilement.—Philadelphia Times.

SHOWING ITS EFFECTS.

The McKinley plan of raising tariff taxes to reduce tariff revenues is beginning to show its effects on a treasury already emptied by Billion-Dollar extravagance. More of the tariff taxes than ever goes to the trusts and less than ever to the treasury.—St. Louis Republic.

HOW IS THIS, MR. POE?

State Auditor Poe in his speeches claims the state would have gone into bankruptcy had it not been for the direct tax refunded. Was this the reason Mr. Auditor Poe wanted the direct tax distributed among the counties?—Steubenville Gazette.

ACCOUNTS FOR HIS ZEAL.

Mr. Harrison's zeal in behalf of McKinley must not be without occult interpretation. Should McKinley be elected, might he not divide Mr. Blaine's strength? It is understood that Mr. McKinley would not accept second place. —Dayton Times.

A PROPER SUBJECT.

The wool grower who allows republican speakers to hoodwink him about the wool tariff, this year, is a fit victim for the bunco steerer.—Circleville Democrat.

SHELBY COUNTY HONORED.

Shelby county has been honored with the opening of the democratic campaign. Let every democrat in the county preserve the reputation of the party by using every effort to get up a large meeting—Shelby County Democrat.

TAKE HIM OFF.

When people are offered free lunches and free whisky and then won't go to hear McKinley, they had better take the tariff apostle off the track before the Cambell car runs over him.—Columbus Post.

WILL LOCK THE DOOR.

When Representative Mills speaks in Mansfield Senator Sherman will probably go in and lock his new barn door until the bombardment is over.—Mansfield Shield and Banner.

NOT AS GOOD AS HIS WORD.

McKinley will take in wool in Carrollton. He is paying only 28c. He promised 40c—but he is not always as good as his word.—Carroll Chronicle.

COLDWATER TICKET.

Upper Sandusky, O., Sept. 12.—The prohibitionists of this county met in the council chamber and nominated the following county ticket: Representative, Rev. A. C. Barnes, of Carey; sheriff, C. L. Cormley, of Crawford township; probate judge, W. E. Webber, of Marseilles township; commissioner, L. W. Smith, of Eden township; infirmary director, A. G. Thatcher, of Crane township; coroner, Geo. Bee, sr., of Crane township.

COMMON SENSE QUESTIONS.

TO THE EDITOR: And yet a few more queries for that peculiar class of people called McKinley "protectionists."

"What's the matter now with the McKinley tactics in his alleged great campaign work. Following fairs and other large gatherings don't seem to save him—as specially noticeable at Steubenville and other places where big bands have been hired and free lunches spread as an inducement to call together a crowd. Poor Bill, you will have to get another "tin horn" to call together your broken ranks. "Tin" with a heavy duty don't draw as well as "free sugar," does it?

How is it that "free trade" has helped England to become the richest country on earth, having the money of the world, the shipping of the world, the navy of the world and money to spare to purchase the best "plants" throughout this country and then have sufficient power in their country to draw our gold from our lockers in one steady stream for the past eight or nine months? If free trade since its adoption in Great Britain in 1846, after that country had eked out a miserable existence under the pressure of "tariff protection" for 500 years, what might we naturally calculate that free trade would do for this country?

If "tariff protection" is as good as the McKinley "protectionists" claim and one locality should "protect" itself from another, in the practical manner that we have had exemplefied during the past thirty years by our "protection" laws, why would it not have been a good plan for the framers of our constitution, in 1787, to have established a code of "tariff protection" laws between New England and the western states and between the north and the south. Why should Boston, New York and Philadelphia have been permitted to send their fine manufactured articles in the early days of this country out to Ohio and other western states in exchange for our timber, minerals and other products of the west. Why should there not have been a "tariff protection" line drawn between the several states? What do you think about this? Don't you think there would have been just as much sense manifested in such a proceeding in the early days of this United States, as there is now and for the past thirty years in placing a barrier between an exchange of commodities with this country and foreign countries?

When can we reasonably expect a schedule of prices from our plush and cloth cloak manufactories and ready-made clothing and other concerns. The people of this country would be well pleased to see what prices these concerns pay their employes for making their various classes of garments and other goods. Also schedule of prices of their garments, etc., this year compared with last year, especially "plush" garments. Also how much more they pay their employes this year than before the passage of the "McKinley bill?"

How much more freedom has the operatives in the modern manufactories at this time than the colored slaves in the south before the rebellion of '61? Is there any provision made for the poor creatures when age and decrepitude comes upon them from over work and poor food, raiment and shelter and the compensation so niggardly mean and insignificant that their employers dare not publish a schedule of the prices paid to them?

Why is it in this apparent land of light and intelligence, that there are so many men who have not enough common honesty and manhood in their composition to stand up and acknowledge the wrong that exists in the "protective tariff tax," and like honest men and good citizens, meet an argument manfully. Why evade the facts staring them in the face and sneak off on a subject entirely foreign, as in the silly silver question now being run on the "combination trust plan," by the protection prattlers and papers?

For some of the most glaring cussedness of the "protection" practices practically reduced by and through republican class legislation and villainy for the past 30 years see the census reports as to the concentration of the capital in the hands of the people of the United States—just notice how few hold and control the money and monied interests in the country compared with the whole number of inhabitants; suppose this to continue another decade, how long before we would be a land, literally of aristocrats and serfs?

Why did McKinley drop his protection rattle when he had so many grand arguments to advance in favor of his pet subject, "protection." Only think for a moment how "protection" protected Wanamaker, that "truly good and pious protection" postmaster-general, together with his co-workers, in the shoddy cloth manufacturing job, in leading the postoffice employes up to the boss tailor who cuts off their garments for them at a price put at a "protection" point, particularly profitable to pious Postmaster General Wanamaker and his Baltimore "protection" partners. Isn't this a grand point in favor of Billy's "bill?" Again, why don't he sound his bazoo on the "protection" benefit that is bestowed upon the proprietors of the cotton mills at Fall River, Mass., where they were "protected" in making a drop of a big per cent. off in wages on their employes recently? Wasn't there a great benefit derived from this drop in wages? What is the reason he didn't deliver a long dissertation upon the "protection" provided for the "wool" manufactures in the special drop in the price of "wool"—wasn't that a good scheme to fleece the "poor ignorant farmer?" Why should "Billy" neglect such telling points pertaining to protection?

What's the reason that such men as Capt. Alfred E. Lee and Gen. John Beatty administer such severe slappings to poor William—"Bill"—McKinley and his coworkers in what General Beatty is pleased to call the McKinley plan for "protection." Such men as Lee and Beatty are not easily "McKinley-ized" and gagged into silent submission, but they speak out frankly and say that such "protection" is "robbery." Now admitting that is true which seems to be generally conceded doesn't it necessarily follow that those who propose that plan of "protection" must be robbers?

And now comes another species of "protection" idiot who says, in trying to apologize for McKinley's "tin" tax on the people, that sugar being free from tax, compensates the consumer for the additional duty on the tin can that holds the canned fruit, so that the can and the fruit together, just about averages at the old price and the consumer should not complain. This poor fool don't seem to have sense enough to know that there is very little sugar used in fruit put up in tin cans, comparatively considered, and exhibits his large supply of ignorance in quoting the item of "sugar," which is a grand argument in favor of free trade, when abstractly viewed separate from the two cent per pound subsidy paid to the sugar producer?

Where would this country be at this time, financially, were it not for the uncommon crops of all kinds grown this year and the remarkable demand for same from foreign countries, caused by failure of crops and military disturbances in said foreign countries? Would we not, in fact, be in a lamentable condition, when we consider the awful effect upon the business interests that the "McKinley Bill" has produced among us?

And now comes another pest as the result of the importation of cheap Italian labor—one of the natural evils emanating from protection in bringing these pests into our country to take the place of adopted and native born citizen laborers—and now we have the genuine Italian itch as a finishing appendage. It is said to be about as bad as the "office itch" that has fastened itself on the republican party for so many years that it will doubtless require the practical skill of both Dr. Campbell and Dr. Grover Cleveland to administer the proper remedies for the relief of the few remaining sufferers of that class i the g. o. p.

LOCAL LABOR NEWS.

The Linemen's union met last evening and adopted resolutions thanking Robison & Co. for courtesies extended on Labor day. The Consolidated was not in it and the boys feel somewhat sore over the niggardly policy of the company.

The Blacksmiths' newly organized union met at Reusch's, Monroe street, last evening, and initiated its new officers. The Union is thriving.

The Woodworking Machinists met last evening and discussed matters pertaining to the Labor day outing. Several new members were initiated.

It is said that the proceeds of Labor day will just about meet the expenses incurred by the Central Labor union.

The Knights of Labor netted $40 by the Labor day trip to Put-in Bay.

THE LIBRARY STARTED.

The Y. M. C. A. Juniors Give a Book Social and Receive Many Volumes.

The opening reception and book social of the Junior Y. M. C. A. was held last evening at Association hall. The object of the entertainment was to secure books to start a junior library, and the admission fee was a book. Seventy-five volumes were received last evening, and more will probably be forthcoming, as they will be welcome from anybody at any time. Following was the program rendered:

Remarks—President Y. M. C. A., Mr. T. H. Walbridge.
Vocal solo—"Variations"—Rhodes—Miss Eugenia Baldwin.
Dialogue—Wesley J. Wuerful, Harry Eagen and Vincent J. Emmick jr.
Vocal solo—"Relics"—Loge—Miss Baldwin.
Essay—"The Living Library"—Arthur S. Sloan, president juniors.
Horn solo—Selected—Mr. Rush Farrar.
Vocal solo—Selected—Mr. Geo. W. Stevens.

Miss Baldwin, who was with the Shubert Quartet last season, sang three selections, and gave her hearers much pleasure. All the numbers were enjoyable. President Walbridge spoke of the good that was being done in the junior department. He said that they took the boys just at the age that their habits were being formed. They gave them pleasant rooms, grounds for games, good books and papers, entertainments, music, and everything that a boy with a cultivated mind could desire. He said that this season, under the direction of Percy Turner, rapid strides would be made by the juniors. A series of first-class entertainments are to be arranged specially for juniors, and other attractive features will be added to the department.

After the entertainment last evening refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

A Visit to a Remarkable Institution at Marysville, Ohio—What Was Discovered.

Letter to Cincinnati Enquirer from Marysville

Some months ago there appeared in The Enquirer a letter from Mr. D. W. Ayers, detailing his experience in the Keeley Institute for the cure of drunkenness, opium, cocaine, morphine and tobacco habit.

Subsequently I saw in the Chicago and New York dailies details of the experiences of others, largely confirming all that had been said by Mr. Ayers. Regarding the matter as one of sufficient importance to be carefully and thoroughly investigated, I have spent two or three days here examining into it.

The result of my investigations warrant me in saying that

A Thorough Application

Of the Keeley system of treatment for thirty days in a given average community will cure more drunkards and opiumeaters than can be reformed by all the temperance organizations in ten years. And this is said without the slightest disparagment of the efforts of temperance workers.

The Keeley Institute here is conducted by Dr. S. N. McCloud, business manager, and Drs. H. A. Rodebaugh and W. F. White, physicians in charge, with a corps of trained assistants. They are all men of preeminent professional ability. Their system of treatment is that discovered and practiced by the celebrated Dr. Leslie E. Keeley, and may be termed generally the Bi-Chloride of Gold treatment—or more properly speaking, salts or gold.

I shall not attempt to write a scientific disquisition, but simply give a layman's description of what he saw and heard. Two days ago, when I reached the town,

There were Some Thirty Patients

At the hospital. Since then half a dozen have been discharged cured, and as many or probably more new ones have been admitted to treatment.

Dr. Rodebaugh kindly admitted me to the impenetralia of his private consultation room to witness the process of injecting the chloride of gold into the system of the patients, which is done four times a day at stated hours during the period of treatment, which usually lasts for twenty-one days.

At a signal the door into Dr. R's private office opened, and a long procession of men, with arms bared to the shoulder, entered, and at the rate of about one every 30 seconds the doctor injected the gold preparation into the upper muscle of the left arm.

Up to this time I was not aware who the Keeley patients were, but as they filed in on the part of the undersigned to meet distinguished lawyers, doctors, business men and an army officer or two, with whom he was well acquainted, receiving a "shot," as the operation is called, and on their part to see a newspaper man looking on at the operation with a professional eye.

There Was a Mutual Surprise

Of course it would be a flagrant breach of propriety for me to name them, without their permission, but many of them are known to thousands of the Enquirer's readers.

This institution, it is proper to say, is no sanitarium, and no restraints are placed around a patient. He is not shut up, nor is he even attended by a professional nurse, unless his physical condition is such as to require it. The patient comes here, secures a boarding place, and reports for treatment four times a day. The rest of the time he does what he pleases.

"Can he take a drink, if he wants it?" will doubtless be asked.

Certainly, and the physicians in charge will furnish him with as much of

The Best Brand of Whisky

as he asks for to take with him and drink as often and copiously as he chooses. The "dry" season continues with them from twenty-four to twenty-seven hours, and then wholly disappears.

The effect of the chloride of gold injection is marked from the start. The other day I saw a patient brought in in that state known as being

"As Drunk as a Biled Owl."

Twenty minutes after the injection in his arm he was intelligently sober. He was given his allotment of whisky, and drank it with his old-time appetite. Forty-eight hours later his appetite for whisky had entirely disappeared, and a half-filled bottle on the table had no temptation for him.

"I am going to take this whisky home to my wife to show her just how far down in the bottle my whisky appetite left me," said he.

This is a case that came under my own observation. The physicians tell me that it is a type of nearly all the cases treated. Some times a patient refuses to drink from the start to reinforce the treatment with his will power, but this, it is said, has no influence, the object being to eradicate and eliminate the appetite from the system.

When a patient has a weak stomach and can not retain raw whisky the cure is less rapid, and satisfactory progress is made only after the tone of the stomach is fully restored.

Among the patients discharged cured to-day was Mr. E. B. Jewett,

A Well-Known Columbus Attorney,

With whom the members of the bar of the whole state are well acquainted. His case required just three weeks' treatment to eradicate the effects of six or seven years of constant over-indulgence in alcoholic stimulents.

"Have you any objections to me referring to your case in the Enquirer?" I asked him.

"None. Why should I? All my friends know of the unfortunate habit into which I had fallen. They will only be rejoiced to know that I am cured of the most terrible disease with which a man can be afflicted. I have tried in vain for years to break the nightmare which weighed me down. It has been removed effectively.

You Can Refer To Me and say that I hope every man similarly afflicted will come here and be cured."

Dr. R. S. Whitworth, a brilliant man and a learned physician, of 194 Arch street, Allegheny City, was also discharged cured during my visit here. He said to me:

"This is perhaps a delicate matter, but you are welcome to refer to me in any thing you may have to say. Here, in the very prime of my life, I found myself the slave of liquor, and a good practice and a high position in society about to pass away from me. How did I fall into the habit of drinking? Much like other people. After a hard day's professional work I took a stimulant, and kept on doing so until my nervous system became so diseased that an ever increasing quantity of stimulant became a necessity to daily existence."

"Do you feel that you have been cured?"

"As completely and absolutely as ever a man was cured of any disease—for this is a disease. I have made a study of the whole system of treatment, and

It is Scientifically Correct.

To my mind there can be no recurrence after the cure is effected except by a recultivation of the morbid appetite, and after one has fully experienced the horrors of the disease he is not likely to invite it again."

I might give the experiences of many others, but the cases of Mr. Jewett and Dr. Whitworth stand as a type of hundreds. Among others who are Willing to Give Their Personal Testimonials,

May be mentioned Dr. Frank Humphreys, Mt. Victory; P. P. Jones, a prominent farmer, Xenia; A. F. Glaze, Westerville; Lewis G. Barton, editor of the Holmes County Farmer, Millersburg; Johial Loobarrow, Mt. Sterling; Wm. Richter, hotel keeper, Milford Center; Dryden Donnelly, Charleston, W. Va., and scores of others.

In many of the most striking cases the patients shrink from publicity, and the following prominent physicians, who have been sending patients to Marysville, can give inquirers the details of

Some Remarkable Cases

And cures: Drs. D. N. Kinsman, Columbus; G. W. Boerstler, Lancaster; Jesse Snodgrass, Kenton; Frank Humphries, Mt. Victory; A. H. Brundage and H. R. McClelland, Xenia; Anderson Newtonville, G. W. Gardner and M. J. Jenkins, Plain City; Leech, Mt. Sterling; J. S. Barber, Charleston, W. Va.

An instance brought to my attention was that of the Buyer Manufacturing company, of Marion, Ohio. One of their most valuable men had become incapacitated from drink, and was completely restored by a course of treatment. The firm had in its employ a most valuable salesman who had become a confirmed inebriate. The manager sent him here and had him treated at the company's expense, and he is now on the road coining money for his employers, who propose to keep up the policy of curing

Their Unfortunate Employes.

As a means of retaining the services of really valuable men. This is a valuable hint to other firms and individuals

I came in contact with a prominent business man of West Virginia, himself the victim of whisky, who some time ago discharged his most valuable employe for habitual drunkenness. The employe came here and was cured, and has now gone back to take charge of his employer's extensive business while he is undergoing treatment.

It would be a mistake to think that the patients here are a lot of ordinary bummers. They are made up of professional and business men, bankers, and men generally who are capable of commanding good salaries and

Filling High Positions

In social, political and professional life. Their reverses came to them through the liquor or opium or some kindred habit, and its removal is all that is necessary to restore them to their former positions.

After a little study one can tell by their eyes and complexions the stage of treatment. The novitiate has the dull eyes and bloated, bluish-purple flesh of the confirmed sot. In a week the change is marked, and in three weeks his eyes are bright and his complexion has the clearness of perfect health and restored animal spirits.

The charges are uniform, $20 per week, and the patients board themselves. Three weeks constitutes the course of treatment, and it is but seldom that a longer period is required. From the books showing the histories of the cases, exhibited by Dr. McCloud, there

SCROFULOUS BABY.

Our Family Physician Recommends Cuticura Remedies, and Says They Cured Our Child.

Father Went 25 Miles to get Cuticura, And Feels Thankful and Wants Others to Do as He Did.

My child broke out with scrofula when two months old, and we tried everything that the doctor could do. It took out his hair and broke out on his limbs and nose. It was then CUTICURA REMEDIES were recommended by our doctor who attended him, and is now attending here. The doctor said CUTICURA REMEDIES cured my child, and recommends them for all diseases of the skin and blood. It did not take but one set of CUTICURA REMEDIES. I went twenty-five miles to get them. My child is well and has a fine head of hair as can be, for which I feel thankful to you, for my wife is in bad health. I have recommended CUTICURA REMEDIES to others. Print this if you think it will cause any person to do as I did. D. F. PENSON,

A SONG IN THE NIGHT.

Sing, oh sing, for the night is dark, and the dawning tarries long,
And the woe of the land of shadowing wing is stilled by the sound of song.
There is never a light on the land to-night, there is never a star in the sky.
Only the glance of the lightning's glance and the white waves leaping high.

The sea birds swing on tireless wing,
The waves, with rhythmic beat,
Forever more along the shore
Their world-old song repeat,
And borne on winds afar,
The silver echoes fill
The vault of heaven from star to star
The earth from hill to hill.

Sing, oh sing, for the night is past, the sun shines over the sea,
And the heart of the world is a song of love and hope for the days to be;
The terror that flies through the midnight skies and the powers of the dark are gone:
Till the music fills the echoing hills, heart of my heart sing on!

Dwarf trees, only two feet high, exact reproductions in miniature of sycamore, oak, cedar and apple trees, have for 200 or 300 years been raised by the Japanese. Particulars of a romantic marriage come from Georgia. Some years ago the couple, then only boy and girl, were married, but their folks separated them, the bride being sent away. The Indians of the Colorado desert have an extraordinary way of foretelling the weather. They not only prognosticate for a few days, but for six months and sometimes a year. They declare that next year will be an early summer and that the fruit will ripen early. What they base their predictions upon is unknown.

The woman knitters of the island of Shetland produce marvelously beautiful work. A very fine long shawl, weighing only two and three-quarter ounces, was sold at Lerwich last year for $75. A choice collection of knit goods, the finest ever produced on the island, was presented to the princess of Wales on the occasion of her marriage. One's enjoyment of the exquisitely fine work is considerably marred, however, by knowledge of the fact that the cruel custom of pulling out the fleece from the sheep by the root is still practiced in Shetland. The finest wool is obtained in this way, and the secretary of the long-named society should seek out the men who practice this savage custom which is called "rueing."

THE FAIR IS CLOSED.

It Was a Successful Exhibition.

The Toledo exposition of 1891 practically closed last evening, though a number of people went out to the grounds to-day. Exhibitors have been busy removing their effects, and by dark but little evidence will be left that there was a fair in progress during the week.

The exposition has been a success. The weather was delightful, hence great crowds were in attendance, especially on Thursday and Friday. The management conducted affairs so that friends have been made for the company, and this influence cannot fail to be felt in the future. Altogether, Toledo profited to a considerable extent by the influx of visitors, and it is to be hoped that the fair managers came in for a fair share of the money spent.

The Races Yesterday.

Had it not been for the interest taken in the final heat of the 2:29 class the races yesterday would have been a very tame affair. The result of the 2:29 was given in the BEE yesterday. The heat was not at all close, and although Nigatingale was a hot favorite she was not in it and broke badly. Biddy Donovan came in under the wire at a jog eight lengths ahead amid the greatest cheering, Nightingale second, Maguoma last.

The three-year-old trot did not fill, although an attempt was made to have the two entered, try it and divide the stakes. It was claimed that the attendance deserved better attraction and the owners of the horse agreed to run for $60—$40 to first, and $20 to second, but the management declined to let the race go.

In the three-year-old pace, best two out of three, there were but three entries and Bessie H had it her own way.

Following is the summary:

Bessie H	1	1
Arleine	2	2
Wilkesmere	3	3

Time—2:42½ 2:48

But very little interest was taken in the running race, $100.

Little Link	2	1	1
Oscar Lynd	1	2	2
Harkwright	3	3	d

Time—30 54.

The bicycle races to-day will be the chief attractions.

ARBUCKLE, RYAN & CO.'S

Fine Display of Machinery and Implements.

Toledo's great and ever reliable agricultural implement house, whose headquarters are on Monroe street, have this year made one of their largest and best showings in farm machinery and implements to be seen anywhere. The firm carry so large and complete a stock of the most popular makes of goods that no farmer need look elsewhere for his supplies.

Messrs. Arbuckle, Ryan & Co. have also earned a very enviable reputation for putting in entire and comple steam plants. Their business in this particular line has grown wonderfully the past five years in Ohio and neighboring states.

Prominent among the many classes of implements and machinery the writer would call the attention of the reader to the well known engines and separators built by the Rapid company, of Massillon, O. They have been on the market many years and stand the test. Also the Oliver chilled plows, and the Brady Manufacturing company's plows and cultivators, both of which have a world wide reputation; the Hoosier Drill co mpany find a large outlet for their famous drills and cultivators through the house of Messrs. Arbuckle, Ryan & Co.; the popular Foos Manufacturing company's feed mills are displayed to great advantage and give the best satisfaction. The Champion mowers and reapers and binders manufactured at Springfield, O., are so well known and so well liked by the farmer that nothing need be said in praise of the machine —only that this firm handle the machines, and that very extensively. In vehicles the Fostoria buggy is carried in stock and on display by this house. It is one of the best put up wagons in existence.

To show the popularity of the house of Arbuckle, Ryan & Co. and the serviceable and well-made goods they sell, it is learned from the head of the house that their sales amount to over half a million dollars annually, and that no complaint is made about the machinery and implements not being as represented.

Lang, Hollinger & D rby's

Display at the Toledo fair was a most creditable one, and while it is known that they make a specialty of cigars and confectionery, a visit to their house on Monroe street will convince any one that they are wide awake and leading the trade in a good many different line of goods.

Lion Coffee.

The world renowned. No other brand will compare to the only Lion Coffee that the Woolson Spice company have put on to the market for years. It showed up in fine style at the fair this year, and Toledo people feel a lofty pride in their displays on all occasions, as well as the excellent brands of goods turned out by this house, which has attained immense proportions. Great additions are annually put to their buildings until their ground space covers acres. Its success is not only attributable to superior business judgment and management, but because from the beginning pure goods only have been put upon the market. Lion Coffee is the same to-day, to-morrow, and always. No variation, no deceipt, it is the best, and that is why the people will have no other coffee in the house.

Their displays at the fairs and street parades are always looked upon by the people much the same as they do on their coffees and spices. They are the finest.

Notes.

Great credit is due the police department for the excellent order preserved.

John Ketcham, second, has purchased the trotting horse Firecracker; price, $700.

The fact that the Lake Shore ran no train to the grounds is unfavorably commented upon.

Several ladies report that pick-pockets relieved them of their purses yesterday afternoon at the fair.

John Powers made some money out of his three-legged and legless pig show. It was the genuine article.

"Church social and fakir's reunion" is the way the fakir puts it. There was no money in it for the fake.

A number of inmates from the asylum were treated to candy at the fair yesterday at Worts, Kirk & Bigelow's.

Baritone was scheduled for the running race, and strangers who did not know another horse had been substituted got bitten on small bets.

Scalper Emery was selling tickets at 35 cents. It is said he secured them from manufacturers to whom they had been sold at a reduction.

Miss Flora De Graff reports that an umbrella with oxodized handle was taken from ladies' art department at the fair. The guilty party is suspected.

Manager Lang personally superintended the running of cars yesterday, and it may be remarked that, considering the crowds, the Consolidated gave excellent service.

A large number of children went to the fair yesterday with 10 cents thinking that was the admittance fee and were turned away with broken hearts upon finding that nothing less than 25 cents would admit them.

Manager Cherry, of the Telephone company, is entitled to the thanks of the BEE for very efficient service rendered during the fair at the BEE stand. Since Mr. Cherry's connection with the Telephone company the service has been improved wherever possible, and no person can give closer attention to the wants of his customers and patrons than does Mr. Cherry endeavor to do. The BEE hopes he will long remain the efficient manager of the Toledo exchange.

SOME DRESSES

That Will Be Worn by Jarbeau at the People's Next Week.

Jarbeau appears at the People's all next week in one of the prettiest, liveliest and most entertaining farce comedies ever put on the road, Starlight. It is one of those pieces of theatrical bric-a-brac in which a plot would be superfluous, but it serves as a medium for the introduction of clever specialty people and the liberal interpolation of good songs, charming dances and exquisite toilettes that, from the popular standpoint, pronounce it a great success. The amount of fun flashed into "Starlight" cannot be measured in words while the witty gags and clever situations help to make a very enjoyable evening.

Miss Jarbeau, is French, full of vivacity and chic, with a charming face, superb form, magnificent voice and exquisite dancing, she combines in one all the attractions of the soubrettes of the day. Of Miss Jarbeau's wardrobe, it must be seen to be appreciated. In the first act she is attired in an Italian peasant dress of blue Henrietta cloth, trimmed with partis colored ribbons. In the second act she wears an evening dress of red silk plush, trimmed with embroidered satin covered with about $20,000 worth of diamonds. Then she appears as a school-girl, with a blonde wig and sun bonnet, and in last act in an Empress Josephine costume of white satin, embroidered, with a snake green sash, and a large hat with an ostrich plume. In the last act she wears a page costume of yellow satin, trimmed with seed pearls, and last a Spanish creation of pomengranate satin, draped with black lace. Each one of her company has been selected with particular care, and those attending the performance will go away charmed.

The Little Tycoon.

This successful comic opera, The Little Tycoon, will be presented in this city by the original company Wednesday evening at Wheeler's. All the superb scenery, costumes, properties, electric effects, together with an orchestra of 10 picked musicians, and a chorus of 30 voices. An exact reproduction of the opera will be given as originally produced during its phenomenal run in Philadelphia.

R. E. Graham, who is the original Gen. Knickerbocker, is one of the most popular young comedians in this country, and the wonderful success he has made is entirely due to his own efforts.

Y MEETING.

First Session After the Summer Vacation—Some Appointments.

A successful and busy meeting of the Ys was held in the parlors of the First Congregational church yesterday afternoon. This was the first session after the summer vacation and there was a good attendance. Miss Stewart, the president, presided, and Miss Nettie Marker acted as secretary.

Misses Stewart, Tracy, Thurstin and Bond were elected delegates to the state convention. During the convention the Ys will entertain Mrs. Barnes, the national president, with a tea and Mrs. Judd Richardson, Miss Daisy Farley and Miss Lettie Young were appointed a committee on the arrangements.

The resignation of Miss Carrie Berry Phelps as superintendent of temperance instruction was received and it was decided to let the executive committee fill the vacancy. Miss Cora Orwig was chosen superintendent of hygiene work. A letter from Mrs. Scheider, of Washington, resigning the vice-presidency of the Westminster branch was read and accepted and Miss Julia Layng chosen for the vacancy.

After some discussion it was decided to have Miss Marie Gibson, of Paris, lecture here under the auspices of the Ys and the arrangements were placed in the hands of Misses Marker, Rickards and Warner.

For the state convention Miss Thurstin is chairman of the reception committee, Mrs. Dr. Barber, of the entertainment committee, and the music will be under the direction of Miss Beach.

Miss Stewart read an excellent paper on "Dress," which was the topic for discussion by the meeting. Among the good points brought out by Miss Stewart was a protest against the long sweeping skirts now so much in vogue. After the paper a general discussion of the topic ensued.

The next meeting will be a parlor meeting with Miss Una Crim at her home, 2327 Ashland avenue.

THE BEAUTY STANDARD.

The standard of female loveliness varies greatly in different countries and with individual tastes. Some prefer the plump and buxom type; some admire the slender and sylph-like, and some of the tall and queenly maiden. But among all people of the Caucasian race, one point of beauty is always admired—a pure, clear and spotless complexion—whether the female be of the blonde, brunette, or hazel-eyed type. This first great requisite of loveliness can be assured only by a pure state of the blood, active liver, good appetite and digestion, all of which are secured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is guaranteed to accomplish all that is claimed for it, or money refunded. If you would have a clear, lovely complexion, free from eruptions, moth patches, spots and blemishes, use the "Golden Medical Discovery."

ORDERED TO SAN FRANCISCO.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Admiral Brown, commander of the Pacific station, has been ordered to proceed from Chili to San Francisco. Admiral Brown will sail on the San Francisco and when he reaches the Mare Island navy yard the San Francisco will be docked and repaired if necessary. She will probably remain at San Francisco in readiness to proceed to any point where a vessel may be needed. The recall of Admiral Brown shows that the state and navy department consider the troubles in Chili at an end.

LOTS OF FUN ALL ROUND.

Mr. Armstrong's Initiation Didn't Come Off.

The Whole of the Ohio Yacht Club Invited to a Wedding—Last Evening's Meeting.

There is nothing like doing things in a wholesale manner, so thinks Chas. A. Carlisle, of this city. Mr. Carlisle is to marry Miss Studebaker, of South Bend, Ind., September 17. He is a member of the Ohio Yacht club, and has a brotherly affection for all the members. He wants them all to be present at his wedding, and an invitation to that effect was read at last evening's meeting of the club. A large number will go. Those who are going are requested to leave word with Charlie Gates, in the Union ticket office, that arrangements for coaches can be made.

It is not customary to initiate members into the O. Y. C., but a few days ago it was decided to overstep the custom and have a little enjoyment at the expense of Clarence Armstrong, of Armstrong & Clarke, who recently became a member. The initiation was to have been as strong as the candidate could stand, and Col. Lyttle was delegated to act as grand high chief, as he had a big voice. Mr. Armstrong was notified that his presence would be expected last evening, and in consequence he was there dressed in his best suit of clothes, with a new hat and a complete change throughout, for he thought that perhaps there was some undressing in it, and he didn't want to take any chances. Well, the whole thing was knocked in the head, as Col. Lyttle couldn't be present. However, Mr. Armstrong didn't tumble to the boys' racket. Mr. Pheatt arose and solemnly announced that, in the absence of Col. Lyttle, the initiation could not go on, but that it would take place next week. Mr. Gunckel then had a brilliant idea. He held in his hand a big bundle of correspondence, etc., as is usual for a secretary to have and, rising to his feet, he said: "I have here a complete record of Brother Armstrong's yachting experiences and his standing and history as a yachtsman." The history looked formidable, and Mr. Armstrong's eyes stuck out as he wondered where they got so much stuff about him. Mr. Armstrong won't know until he reads this that his initiation was all a fake and will never come off.

Some time ago an O. Y. C. pennant was sent to Mr. and Mrs. J. Webber while on a cruise on the steam launch Nellie. The flag followed them around the whole trip, just arriving at a port after they had left. Finally, when the party reached Toledo, the flag also arrived home, after a circuitous and lengthy journey, and found its way to Mr. and Mrs. Webber, who thanked the club for the present last evening.

Morgan Sheehy, Fred B. Crosby and John A. Haverfield were taken into the club last evening. The secretary was instructed to prepare a printed list of officers and members to be sent to all members before the annual meeting and election of officers, which occurs Oct. 9.

After the business session a pleasing program was rendered on the stage under the direction of the entertainment committee. Maynard Kinney and Will Stackhouse looked after the instrumental part, while George and Gus Leibius, Chas. O'Brien, Chas. Wuerful and Geo. W. Stevens held forth behind the scenes. It was an impromptu affair, but the audience said it was all right, and was generous with its applause.

There were a number of visitors in the audience, including George Kolbe, captain of the yacht Sunbeam, and his party, Gus Schade, J. J. Bowan and Frank McDowell, all of Cleveland, who are on a little cruise. They enjoyed the performance, and said the Cleveland yacht clubs couldn't turn out anything like it. They leave for the islands to-morrow, accompanied by Frank Turney, of this city, who is to show them some good fishing holes. Mr. Turney called on John Gunckel this morning, and that gentleman drew him some rough maps of where the fish abound.

It seems that some time ago a man in the employ of the club purchased at Draper & Nugents some articles for his own use. He left the service of the club and made for other parts, leaving the bill unpaid. Messrs. Draper & Nugent sent a collector to the O. Y. C. The club refused to pay then, but said it would listen to a representative of the firm at last night's meeting. The club waited a long time last evening, but no representative turned up.

McAuliffe Won.

New York, Sept. 12.—Jack McAuliffe and Austin Gibbons fought last night before the Granite club, but the police interfered in the eighth round and stopped the mill. McAuliffe had the best of the go, and referee Dunn awarded the fight to him. Gibbons became very indignant and said he was robbed of his money and reputation.

Bicycle Riding Again—Care of House Plants—What the Flowers Say in September—Miscellany.

THE HARVEST MOON.

Faded the last faint blush of evening's rose,
And shadows gather in the sleeping vale,
Where silent now, the rippling streamlet flows
Beneath the mist, that, rising dim and pale,
Hovers above it like a silver veil,
Hiding the tears upon the closed-up flowers,
That seem to weep for the day's vanished hours.

Across the heaven a mellow radiance steals,
The mist grows brighter, and the silver stream
Reflects the tender light which half reveals
Earth's loveliness, and, like an infant's dream,
Makes all things beautiful and holy seem:
The harvest moon along the autumn sky
Holds her fair sway and bids the darkness fly.

O'er fallen leaves, o'er hill and vale and plain,
O'er ripened fruit and fields of golden grain;
O'er lovers, lingering in the mystic light,
Whispering fond words beneath the silent night;
O'er the great city in its solemn rest,
O'er wealth and poverty, the worst, the best,
Her lustre falls, and, through the listening air
Breathes but of peace and beauty everywhere.
Serene and pure she mounts the azure heaven,
Telling the wondrous love her God to man has given.
—All the Year Round.

KATYDID.

In the cool, crisp nights of autumn,
When the woods are dark and still,
Loud above the lisping crickets
Rings in accents clear and shrill
That never-ending wrangle of the green-winged katydid;
Katy did!
Katy didn't!
Yes she did!

From twilight until rosy dawn steals softly o'er the hills
These disputatious insects, who inherit stubborn wills,
Are nagging one another with voices rasping rude:
Who was it broke the bottle?
And at once the restless brood:
Katy did!
Katy didn't!
Yes she did!

When frosty nights have chilled the fierceness of their rows,
And only faint, weak stragglers still cling among the boughs,
'Tis sad to hear their faltering song,
Thin echo of the past,
Still keeping up their family feud, though life be slipping fast:
Katy did!
Katy didn't!
Yes she did!
—Forest and Stream.

Had we no other monitor to tell us the days of the sere and withered leaf were hastening to meet us, the flowers would tell the story. Whether in the florists' windows, where those of us who are townwellers may see them, or in the country where our more fortunate sisters can see them without an intervening glass—can smell, handle and pick them without first opening their pocketbooks, the flowers tell us, Fall is here.

It seems but such a little time since fields and florists showed us the violets and anemones; then came roses and lilies, sweet-peas—the dainty darlings and warm-hearted pansies, pinks and carnations. Now the brilliant asters and the dashing dahlias. We are the showy close of the flower season, they seem to say. And every morning we lift our eyes to the distant trees expecting them to acknowledge in their blushing leaves that the kiss of the frost has been given them.

It seems such a little while since we welcomed the first promise of spring, as these trees showed it in tender buds of green. Then we planned so much to be done in "the long summer days" that were coming. It is scarcely probable that one of us looks back as the days now shorten, and sees accomplished all we planned. The swift months make up the year before we can count them, almost, and so much remains undone. As our Longfellow wrote:

Labor with what zeal we will,
Something still remains undone;
Something uncompleted still,
Waits the rising sun.

Till at length the burden seems
Greater than our strength can bear;
Heavy as the weight of dreams,
Pressing on us everywhere.

Of course we have not done all we meant to do, whoever did? And we cannot call back yesterday. All the more reason that we shall not spend our time grieving over yesterday's lost opportunity lest, while we are doing so, to-day slips by, and becomes even as yesterday. The burden of things undone is one which presses especially upon housekeepers, and yet they of all others should be free from it, for upon no others are such multiplicity of details devolving as upon the queens of our homes. For the sake of those whom we cheerfully toil to serve this "burden of things undone" must not be allowed to press too heavily upon us. Housekeepers, homekeepers, more than any others possibly, can be strong, happy and useful according to the measure in which they adopt and live by Edward Everett Hale's motto: "Look up and not down, look forward and not back, look out and not in, and lend a hand."

In the spirit of hearing both sides before judging, which we trust animates this Household and all its members, having published letters from our own contributors favoring bicycling for girls and young women, we present a contrary opinion. This is the way "Amber" writes in the Chicago Herald:

No, my dear, I can hardly retract what I said about the bicycle. It is a grand thing to retract an utterance when convinced that you are in the wrong, but it is a show of the "white feather" to do so merely to save yourself from being unpopular. If anyone despises a "proper person," in the conventional sense, more than I do he must lie awake nights to devise means to express himself.

I haven't a prude's hair in my head, either, and yet it makes me shiver to see a woman astride of a wheel. Not that there is anything immoral or otherwise opposed to womanly rectitude in it—it is simply an unpleasant sight. I think a modest girl would shrink from a first ride in public on a wheel, even as she would shrink from her novitiate in a low-necked dress, or from her maiden attempt at a seaside bath. There are instincts in womanly girls that are so delicate that they are soon dispelled, but which ring true every time and are right from the heart.

As to exercise, there are a thousand ways of taking exercise superior to bicycle riding. Take walking; I know it as an old-fashioned method, but there is nothing that will set the roses blooming and the sparkles flying so surely. Our grandmothers were a good and hardy race, and they never heard of a bicycle. Be out of doors all you can; the sun is a glorious friend, and the winds are like merchants of the orient—they carry precious balsams in their pack; but be out of doors as bright jolly, lovable women, and not as hybrids on wheels, or as awkward human wind mills revolving in a gale. I love women; there is nothing sweeter unless it is an old-fashioned rose or honeysuckle full of dew; but a woman to be sweet must retain her womanliness, which she cannot do (in my estimation) if she strides a wheel

CHAT.

Hope, who sends the Household this week her receipt for canning pears, is not only a charming hostess on general principles, but a model housekeeper whose tempting table is prepared for family or guests under her own supervision. Chat assures the members of the Household that anything Hope recommends can be relied on as worth trying. In a note accompanying the receipt Hope says:

How glad I am that Barbara Moss is having such a nice trip this summer. I have enjoyed her letters very much, as well as all of you.

A valued contributor to the Household asks for the address of one of the members, which shall be given her next week, if permission is accorded, as doubtless it will be.

Zanobia asks when Barbara is coming home, and expresses the pleasure she has found, and which we all share, in Barbara's letters. The time for Barbara's return has not been definitely stated, but will probably be known soon.

There is something very philosophical in the way Sarah Gladden writes of having to wear her "old tattered hat," and there is this to be said in praise of the sentiment that very few women can be philosophical under like circumstances.

CARE OF PLANTS.

Now that the plants which are to brighten our homes this winter must be taken up and potted to keep them out of Jack Frost's reach, the following advice is very seasonable. It was given by the chief gardner of the department of agriculture at Washington, to a reporter on the Star, published in that city:

To begin with, never apply water to a plant until it requires it, that is, until it is dry, and then apply a sufficient quantity to soak it.

Novices in plant culture usually make the mistake of merely sprinkling the surface of the soil, perhaps daily, without at any time applying enough water to saturate the mass. Plants cannot flourish under such conditions; the surface will appear wet, while the main body of the soil is hard and dry. One drawback to properly watering plants in parlor and window gardening arises from the inconvenience attending the use of water in sufficient quantities; another evil is the dryness of the air.

Both of these obstacles to success can be greatly modified by the use of a table properly fitted for the reception of the flower pots or small vases in which the plants are kept. This table may be of any required size; a surface of two by three feet would be suitable for most windows; it should be made tight and neatly fitted. A ledge is made by fastening a strip three inches wide around the edge; then fill with two inches of clean, white sand, upon which the plants are placed. Lining the table with zinc would completely guard against drip.

There are a few general rules with regard to watering plants which may be noted. Watering should be preferably applied during the early part of the day, especially so in the winter season. Plants in pots well supplied with roots will require much more water than those which are newly potted or have a quantity of soil with a few roots. Plants with narrow or small foliage will not use so much water as those with large spreading leaves. Plants in the shade will not need as much water as will those in the sun. But in cases when water is applied it should be done copiously.

In the pot culture of plants, where the amount of soil is limited, the use of liquid manures is of vast service when judiciously applied, but much harm may be occasioned by its indiscriminate use. Many persons consider it necessary to resort to the use of guano and other solutions on sickly plants, and are surprised to find that the application only hastens the dissolution of the patient.

It is only healthy and well-rooted plants that are to be benefited by manures, and such as are supplied with hungry roots, but growing slowly for want of nutriment. But it should be kept in mind that stimulants should not be applied while flower buds are forming, as it might induce an increase wood growth at the expense of the flowering principle.

MY OLD TATTERED HAT.

Yet how many fancy feathers and furbelows it wore
When it hung upon its high peg in my wardrobe for a while.
I showed envious neighbors and companions 'twas all the style.

But when fashion, ever changing, took up buckles birds and bows,
My old hat dropped its feathers and its fancy furbelows.
Then I hung it in the kitchen and just wore it nows and thens.
When I grabbed a handy something to scare away the hens.

Yet it never growled or grumbled when it fell away from style,
But looks perfectly contented and happy all the while.
Though every body kicks it and knocks it here and there,
It's just the same old happy hat; it never seems to care.

And I tolerate its presence on the floor or on the wall
Since fickle fortune may not give me one that's better, after all,
Though mansions would not have it on wall or on the floor
It is welcome in my humble home—I love it all the more.

What if Fortune leaves me me naked, when I cry for this and that.
There is something to console me in my old and tattered hat;
And if people laugh and titter when this tattered hat they see,
I can point them to the future where that something waits for me.

But nobody cares who titters when they see it on my head,
For there's more beneath the tatters than was ever thought or said
If fashion should change back to those furbelows and feathers
I may yet look stylish in my old hat of all weathers.

SENSIBLE CAP AND CLOAK.

SCRAP BASKET.

It was a very clever young man, who, undecided which of two young women to choose for a wife, gave to each a skein of snarled silk. One of them threw the skein away as worthless, and the other picked out the snarl. The patience, desire to please and prudence of the latter young woman left the young man no longer in doubt.

"How long have you been out of work?" asked a lady of a girl who came to apply for a position as chambermaid.

"Ten days," was the reply.

"And in that time you have not found opportunity to mend your frayed out dress? I do not think you would suit me," the lady said.

HOPE AND MEMORY.

Oh youth! what seest thou
To glad thy brow;
On what fair goal is thy ambition placed?
What dearly sought-for prize
Before thee lies
And ever fondly beckons thee to haste?

The youth in eagerness replied: "I see
A vision of the wondrous things to be!"

Oh age! is there for thee
Aught fair to see:
Is all the beauty from the picture gone;
Are fields all drear
And barren here;
What is there left for thee to look upon?

Age, sighing, smiled and wiped its eyes ablur:
"I see the glory of the things that were."

Purity is power. The rose, among the sweetest and most beautiful of God's creations, is armed with thorns, nature's sharp bayonets, for warding off attack. Purity is the defense of beauty; modesty is the safeguard of innocence. "Keep thyself pure." The severe chastity which repels familiarity is an absolute essential for the safety of the soul, as general attractiveness is for its beauty.

"Over my grave let the green grass grow!"
—It was the prayer of the emp ror's bride
Uttered three hundred years ago:
Thus she pleaded befor she died,
"Over my grave let the green grass grow!"

To clean lace, fill a bottle with cold water, draw a stocking tightly over it, securing both ends firmly. Place the lace smoothly over the stocking and tack closely. Put the bottle in a kettle of cold water containing a few shavings of soap, and place over the fire to boil. Rinse in several waters and then drain and dry. When dry, remove and place smoothly in a large book and press with weights. Very nice lace can be made to look like new by this process.

It is hardly half a century ago that children all over the world were little better than slaves. They were beaten for their faults or the humors of their parents or governors; they did not speak in the presence of their elders, and they could escape their misery only by growing into maturity. To-day these things are somewhat better. The rod is banished from the schools; all beating of children is relegated to the lower classes, where the children find much liberty in the street; and it is considered in shocking taste, in fact very vulgar indeed, for any well-bred person to beat a child. A great many children to-day live in charming intimacy with their parents, and one sees it in the lovely, trusting expression of their eyes, in the inspired joy that breaks over their faces, chasing away that momentary gravity that is not sadness in a thoughtful child.

A celebrated French artist said that if you would find the expression of liberty and courage in a child's face, you must not go to seek it among the "gamins" of the street, but among the children of the well-to-do.

KITCHEN CONFERENCE.

GRANDMOTHER'S WAFFLE-IRON.

A simple arrangement of diamonds and squares,
And 'tis no small matter, the amount of batter
That iron has gradu ted onto a platter.
But 'tis something awful, as you sit with your jaw full,
To think what is lawful to put in a waffle.

Take skim milk so sour that the pigs scarce will eat it,
Take an egg that's so lazy you just have to beat it,
Take flour that's so heavy, with soda you raise it,
Add a spoonful of salt or else you won't praise it,
Now mix it all up with a stir and a clatter,
Then fill the greased iron; be careful, don't splatter!

There there, I had almo t forgotten th but ter!
Here it is, duly melted, heart ts fierce sputter,
I ith hot bed of coals, not forgetting to turn it,
You pull it evenly bake, taking care not to burn it,
Now, friends, is there not indeed something awful
In making and baking an old-fashioned waffle?

But the old waffle iron hangs under the stairs,
A simple arrangement of diamonds and squares,
And amid all the events which its history shares,
It never has once been set out for regalrs.

CANNED PEARS.

A friend of the Household writes: I have an elegant receipt for canning pears, which I send you. Perhaps it will be of use to some of the BEE readers:

To one peck of pears take one quart of water, one pint of vinegar, three and one-half pounds of sugar. Pare and quarter the fruit and boil in the syrup until cooked. Put a little stick cinnamon and cassia buds also.

Toledo. HOPE.

Cucumber catsup.—This is the easiest of all catsups to make, and is especially nice to serve with fish when it is impossible to get fresh cucumbers.

Choose large, partially ripe cucumbers. Pare, remove the seeds and grate them. Place the pulp in a sieve to drain, then measure, and to each pint add a half pint of cider vinegar, a quarter teaspoonful of pure cayenne, an even teaspoonful of salt, and two heaping tablespoonfuls of grated horseradish. Mix, bottle, cork and seal.

Canning Tomatoes for Soups and Stews.—Select sound, ripe tomatoes; scald and skin them; chop them, but not very fine. Remove all the hard parts and drain off all juice. Fill good stout porter bottles within about two inches of the top. Cork tightly, and stand the bottles in a wash boiler of cold water. Cover the boiler and bring the whole to boiling point. Boil gently for three hours, then take the boiler from fire, remove lid, and allow bottles to cool quickly in the water. Then dip each cork in sealing wax. Keep in a cool, dry place.

Piccalilli.—Mix well together one quart of chopped cucumbers, same of cabbage, two good-sized green peppers, one pint of onions chopped, and one gill of grated horseradish. Mix one quart of cider vinegar with a pint of cold water, cover this over the vegetables, and stand aside over night. Next morning drain and press mixture, but it in a stone jar, add a dozen whole cloves, one ounce white mustard seed, mix and cover with pure cold vinegar. It is ready for use in 24 hours. Will keep well one month.

Apples Jellied.—Use "ladyblush" or "pipkins." Pare and core one dozen sound apples. Put them in cold water to prevent discoloration. Put the parings and cores with six good sized apples, sliced, into a kettle and cover with a quart of water. Simmer gently for a half hour, stir and then turn into a bag to drain. Put this liquor into a kettle, add one pound of loaf sugar; when the sugar is dissolved add the apples that have been quartered. Cover the kettle and simmer gently until the apples are tender. Then take each piece out carefully and lay it on a dish. Boil the syrup forfully twenty minutes longer. It must jelly when tried in a saucer. Put the apples in tumblers, pour over the jelly and when cool, tie on. A teaspoonful of vanilla sugar may be added to the jelly, and is a great improvement.

Tomato Honey.—This honey if well made will take the place of the ordinary syrups. It is, of course, by far, more wholesome and pure. To each pound of ripe tomatoes, allow the grated yellow rind of one lemon and six fresh peach leaves; cut the tomatoes into pieces, add lemon rind and peach leaves, and cook slowly until they are soft and well done; then strain them through a bag, pressing hard. To each pint of this liquor, allow one pound of loaf sugar and the juice of one lemon. Boil for a half hour or until it becomes thick like syrup. Bottle and seal.

Grape Jelly.—Stem ripe grapes and put in a preserve kettle, let them come to a boil, mash and strain. Put the juice on to boil for twenty minutes, when add three quarters of a pound of sugar to every pint of juice, skim while boiling; let cook fifteen minutes. Green grape jelly may be made the same way, but will require a pound of sugar to a pint of juice.

Chopped Ripe Cucumber Pickle (uncooked).—Two dozen large ripe cucumbers, six white onions, four red peppers. After paring and removing seeds from cucumbers chop them rather coarse. The peppers and onions should be chopped fine and mixed with cucumbers together with one ounce of white mustard seed and one cup of salt. Put the mixture into a muslin bag and drain 24 hours. Put in glass fruit jars and cover with cold vinegar.

Indian Pickle.—Two gallons of sharp vinegar, one teacupful of salt, eight ounces of ground mustard, two ounces of celery seed, four ounces of ginger, four ounces of cinnamon, two ounces of cloves, three large pieces of horse-radish. Boil all the ingredients together fifteen minutes. Almost any vegetable may be used except cabbage, and it is convenient to add them from time to time as the season advances. String beans and cauliflower should be parboiled first in salted water. Small onions, green grapes, gherkins, small bits of ripe cucumbers, nasturtium seeds, radish pods and small tomatoes may be added without parboiling. Occasionally stir the pickle from the bottom and keep it well covered.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Onions, turnips and carrots should be cut across the fiber as it makes them more tender when cooked.

Alcohol or benzine is a good thing to clean glass, and clean paper is better than any cloth, sponge or towel.

In cooking vegetables always remember that boiling water evaporates rapidly on the approach of a storm or when it is raining.

Old newspapers, torn in small pieces and wet in water, softened by the addition of a little ammonia, are excellent to wash lamp chimneys.

A little memorandum book or slate in the kitchen is a great convenience for busy housekeepers in which to write a list of things needed for the kitchen and table.

Varnished woodwork should be cleaned with cold tea. Soap takes off the gloss. Wash thoroughly with weak tea and rub dry with a soft cloth.

Meat slightly sour or tainted can be made sweet by holding over the fumes of ground coffee burned on a shovel or stovelid. Game and fowls can be treated the same.

When hams or tongues are cooked they should be instantly thrown into cold water, as the change from the boiling water they were cooked in to cold water loosens the skin from the flesh, and it pulls off without trouble.

Popular Science News cautions housekeepers against using lemon squeezers covered with a coating of zinc, as the citric acid of the lemon will readily dissolve the zinc, forming unwholsome and poisonous salts.

Will Issue Bonds.

The directors of the City of Toledo held a meeting in the office of Swayne, Swayne & Hayes yesterday for the purpose of providing ways and means to pay the $65,000 still due the Craig Shipbuilding company for building the steamer. It was decided to issue bonds according to the followingresolution introduced by Mr. Nearing and unanimously adopted:

"That the president and secretary of the company be and are hereby authorized to execute and deliver to a trustee, the bonds of this company, secured by mortgage and fire and marine insurance policies on its sidewheel steamer, City of Toledo, together with her engines, boilers and outfittings appertaining thereto, at $65,000, payable in principal and interest within 10 years from date, the interest at 6 per cent., payable semi-annually; the said bonds to be sold at not less than par and accrued interest, and the proceeds thereof to be applied to the balance due upon the boat to the Craig Shipbuilding company, her builders."

Big Tow from Buffalo.

The steamer St. Lawrence arrived yesterday with five barges in tow which she brought up from Buffalo. Captain Homer Durand handled the fleet in splendid shape and proved his good seamanship as well as the excellent qualities of his steamer. The St. Lawrence has been doing some good business this season.

Going up Light.

The steamer H. S. Pickands and the schooner Oliver Mitchell left yesterday light for Escanaba where they will load ore. They were here several days waiting for charter but were unable to obtain cargoes. The schooner Samuel Marshall was also in the same box and left yesterday for the upper lakes.

The steamer C. G. Hadley left this morning with coal and had in tow the schooner C. C. Barnes, light, which was unbale to get a charter here.

Buffalo is Lowest.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The following bids were opened at the treasury department for construction of a revenue cutter to be used for boarding purposes at Chicago: Union Drydock company, of Buffalo, $36,675; Craig & Co., Toledo, $39,00; Reeder & Co., Baltimore, $38,000, if the cutter be made of steel; $37,500 if of iron; Manistee Iron works, Manistee, Mich., $59,950.

The three firms located at lake ports will construct the cutter of steel or iron for the sum named in their bids. The appropriation for constructing the cutter however, is but $28,000, or more than $8,000 less than the lowest bid. It is expected the department will be compeled to modify its plans or ask congress for more money for the work. Meantime the bids will be taken under consideration.

Sault Ste. Marie, Sept. 12.—After lightering about 400 tons the steamer Pontiac was towed through Sailors' Encampment passage yesterday afternoon and is now on her way to Detour. She is in charge of the tug Seagull and Tom Dowling.

DEATH AT THE INFIRMARY.

Heartless Conduct of a Husband—He Gets a Polite Tip.

Early this morning an old lady named Guile, wife Hiram Guile, was buried at the county infirmary. A few hours later Hiram Guile himself put in appearance at the infirmary office and catching sight of Superintendent Wilcox, inquired as to the health of his wife. He was told that she had been buried but a few hours previous.

"You don't say so," God bless you," exclaimed the old man, evidently much grieved, but showed himself in his true light in the next instant when he remarked:

"She has some clothes out there, hasn't she? Of course you put clothes on her when you buried her?"

"That's a queer question. Of course we did, such as they were."

"Well, now, that's too bad. I went and paid $13 for a dress to bury her in."

"We never found it."

"Well, now, that's strange. The dressmaker must have forgot to send it out."

This all seemed strange to that a man's wife should die in a poor house and be buried in a pauper's grave, and the husband, whose personal appearance denoted that he had plenty, should know nothing of it.

A Bee was present when the above conversation took place. The old man turned to go, and the Bee was about to make inquiry of him when Mr. Kirkby stopped him and said:

"Guile, you want to send those women away from your house at once or we will have the police look after you. Respectable people who live in your neighborhood won't stand it any longer. They have been here several times and complained, and remember this is the last call."

The old man stoutly proclaimed innocence. First he declared the story was a lie out of whole cloth, then said he only had one, and she was working for him, but before he left he acknowledged to having two women living at his house, but was going to get rid of one of them. He was told to get rid of both of them or suffer the consequences.

Guile is 78 years old, draws a pension and is amply able to support him self and wife. He is well dressed and evidently has plenty to live on, and why his wife should die at the poorhouse, deserted even while dying, is a question that will bear investigation.

Superintendent Wilcox stated this morning that Guile was out to the infirmary the day before yesterday, and his wife was dying at the time, being then unconscious. Instead of staying by her side until the last, he left. The next day two inmates, named Agnes Freeman and Bell Smith, left the institution, and have since been found at Guile's house. Agnes Freeman was waiting on the corner of Superior and Adams street this morning while Guile was in the infirmary office.

HERMIA'S HOUSE-CLEANING

"But you see, Lena, it's something that has got to be done," said Hermia Vane, nodding her head.

Dr. Electus Vane—he had been moldering in Holmesworthy churchyard six years, with the wild buttercup and blackberry vines running riot over his grave—had been agreat lover of Shakespeare and had called the twin daughters Hermia and Helena. They were odd names, and of course required explanations for almost everybody—explanations that were sometimes a little awkward.

Helena was romantically inclined, and gloried in her nomenclature. Hermia set her pretty pearly teeth together and wished she had been called Prudence, Naomi or any other drum-drum, every-day sort of an appelative.

Upon this sunshiny afternoon Helena Vane sat, with a book in her lap, upon the doorstep, making, quite unconsciously to herself, a picturesque little tableau under the evening shadow of the great maple, which was just showering down the last of its crimson blossom banners to make room for the cluster of tender young leafage; for spring [illegible] slowly up the Holmesworthy way that season, and everything was late. Hermia, with her sleeves rolled up, had just finished washing the dinner dishes.

"Some one must wash dishes," said Hermia, "and Helena does so hate kitchen drudgery."

"I'll do 'em, dear," said old grandmamma Jane, an apple-cheeked old lady. "Run along to your sewing. I hate to see your pretty white hands in the dish-water."

"You, indeed?" cried Hermia. "Not as long as I am here. Why, what are young folks made for, if not to wait on old people?"

"Helena does not always reason so," said the old lady, a little bitterly.

"Oh, well, you see, Helena is intellectual and writes poetry. Now I haven't the brains for that sort of thing even if I cared for it—which I am sorry to say I don't, and so it stands to reason, you see, that I should be in the dish-water."

Accordingly, Hermia had washed the dishes and arranged them in neat order on the whitely-scoured shelves, and had come out to have a little domestic chat with Helena.

"Got to be done? Of course it has got to be done!" retorted Helena impatiently, "and why can't we hire some one to do it?"

"Oh, what a degradation it is to be poor!" sighed Helena, lifting her turquoise blue eyes to heaven. "Hermia, why in the name of Midas and Croesus, and all those rich old heathens we read about, didn't some old millionaire fall in love with us when we visited Alice Cope last winter, in Philadelphia? Girls in novels never go anywhere without picking up at least a half dozen beaux."

"But we are not girls in novels," laughed Hermia.

"There was Mark Hazeltine—you remember him, Hermy?—that young man with the splendid dusky eyes and white teeth."

"I remember," said Hermia, blushing a little in spite of herself.

"I know he fancied one of us, or both. Just think how often he used to come to Alice's! If he could only have remained a little while longer I feel certain he would have become a foregone conclusion. And only think—"

"What nonsense all this is!" impatiently cried out Hermia. "And what on earth has it to do with our spring house-cleaning? There are all the lower rooms to be re-papered, and—"

"And who is to do all this hard housemaidy sort of work?" demanded Miss Vane, with a shudder.

"We, of course, Helena, since we can't afford to have it done."

"I shan't touch it!"

"Then I insist," said Hermia, with the cool independence which was a part of her nature; "with what help grandmamma can give me."

"Hermia, have you sunk so low as to be a mere household drudge?" severely demanded Helena.

"I haven't sunk sufficiently low," Hermia laughingly retorted, "to lie in the dirt, as long as I am physically able to purify my surroundings."

* * * * *

A golden mid-April day! The violets making a blue carpet along the sunny side of the old garden wall; the primroses writing their hieroglyphics adown the course of the gurgling stream; and Helena Vane was practicing a new song, with her blue-ribboned guitar, in the parlor, while Hermia, in the shed at the foot of the garden, was mixing a prodigious pail of whitewash, and singing at her work as merrily as if the lime had been balls of embroidery floss, and her brushy brush a dainty needle, weaving itself in and out of silken canvas.

She was dressed appropriately to her work, this enterprising young damsel, with a crash apron tied around her trim waist, and an impromptu Normandy cap, made out of a handkerchief, perched on her head, concealing the whole of her bright hair, except where one or two stray curls had escaped and hung like wondering spirals of sunshine, on her blue-veined brow. And if Hermia Vane could only have known it, she never looked prettier in her life.

"And now, grandmamma, I believe this witches' cauldron of foaming snow is ready," said Hermia, gaily, "and if you'll take hold of the handles—just to steady it, you know—I'll do all the lifting. We will begin operations at once."

While old Mrs. Vane and Hermia were toiling slowly up the garden walk with the whitewash tub between them an elegantly dressed young gentleman with diamond studs in his shirt bosom, straight cameo-like features and dark blue eyes fringed by long lashes, was advancing briskly up the front path.

"I think this must be the house," said Mr. Mark Hazeltine, "as nearly as I can guess from the confused directions of that old idiot at the railway station and—"

But the current of his soliloquy was cut short by the sudden appearance of a bright, welcoming face at the door—Helena Vane herself, in pale blue muslin with blue tillets of ribbons in her hair, a sash picturesquely looped at the side and rosetted slippers, like a dream of Cinderella.

"Oh, Mr. Hazeltine, I am so glad to see you!" cried Helena, extending both of her hands.

At the same moment Hermia and the tub of whitewash appeared around the corner of the house. In her surprise at the sight of an unexpected visitor—and the unexpected visitor of all others—Hermia dropped her end of the tub, coloring as red as a rose.

"Oh, my dear!" cried old Mrs. Vane, trying, but in vain, to save it, "there goes your whitewash!"

"How do you do, Mr. Hazeltine?" said Hermia, recovering her self-possession, and advancing with proffered hand.

"My sister is—ahem—practicing for a masquerade," stammered the scandalized Helena.

"It's no such thing!" retorted Hermia, blushing a more vivid scarlet than ever. "I am going to whitewash our back kitchen ceiling."

"But can't I help you?" asked Mr. Hazeltine, laughing. "I used to be a good hand at the brush in my schoolboy days."

"I've no objection to your trying," said Hermia, gravely. "But you'll have to borrow a sheet from grandmamma to cover up your fine clothes."

"I'll risk the fine clothes," said Mr. Hazeltine, resolutely.

"Hermia! Hermia! are you crazy?" protested Helena, turning pink and white by turns. "Go and change your dress at once and come down to the parlor."

"Not until I have done my whitewashing," insisted her obdurate twin-sister. "Remember, Mr. Hazeltine, it was your own offer!"

And Mr. Hazeltine looking into the sapphire depths of those sparkling eyes, stood to his colors.

"My own offer!" said he. "Of course it was; and I shall feel too much honored by its acceptance."

And to Helena Vane's infinite disgust, Mr. Hazeltine spent the whole morning in the kitchen, disguised in a paper cap and a piece of an old sheet, helping Hermia to whitewash the ceiling.

"Hermy," said Helena, when Mr. Hazeltine was gone and she contrived to obtain audience of her sister, "I am ashamed of you."

"And why?"

"To let Mr. Hazeltine into the secret of our poverty."

Hermia's eyes flashed.

"If he despises us on account of our poverty," she said, "his friendship is not worth having. I shall not play hypocrite to accommodate any man."

"He will never come here again."

"I beg your pardon, Lena. He is coming again to-morrow."

And sure enough Mr. Hazeltine made his appearance the next day, "quite ready for another job of work," as he himself expressed it.

"But you are not in earnest, Mr. Hazeltine?" Helena pleaded.

"Yes, I am. I never enjoyed myself more than I did yesterday. With Miss Hermia's permission I'll see the house-cleaning business through."

"You'll be of no use at all with the scrubbing brush and the broom," said Hermia, mischievously; "but I've no objection to your helping paper the little west room when we get the paste ready."

It was nearly a week before they got to the west room, but Mr. Hazeltine came every day. And when they put on the last strip of bright colored bordering, Mr. Hazeltine laid aside his paper cap.

"Hermia," said he (they had grown to be great friends during this al fresco sort of life), "I've a question to ask you."

"Well?"

"Don't you think we work together nicely?"

"Pretty well, considering," said Hermia. "Would you object to me as a partner?"

"Not at all."

"Then may I consider myself accepted?" he asked eagerly.

"Yes," she answered, with half a blush and half a smile.

That was Hermia Vane's last job of house-cleaning.

Helena is single yet. She says she cannot comprehend the men of the present age.

WHAT CONSTITUTES DUTY?

An Important Decision to Life Savers Rendered.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Solicitor Hepburn of the treasury department has rendered an opinion laying down the law as to what constitutes "line of duty" in the life saving service of the United States.

A surfman of the service, while employed in repairing a government building, not a life saving station, fell from the roof and broke his leg and by reason of the accident was unable to resume work for nine months.

Sections 7 and 8 of the life saving service regulations provide for compensation for one year to a surfman who receives injury while in service. In this case the question was solely as to whether, being within call of his station, and presumably on duty, he was "in the line of duty" at the time he broke his leg. Solicitor Hepburn holds that he was not "in line of duty" and is therefore not entitled to pay while laid up by his injury.

This is an important decision of its kind, forming, as it does, a precedent for like cases in the future.

HURLED TO DEATH.

How Easy to Drift Toward Death.

A man in a boat above the Falls in smooth water, unconscious of danger allowed himself to drift. The current at first slight, increased until his rapid whirling and roar of the cataract brought to his senses full realization of his awful peril—too late.

So we often neglect a little weakness, nervousness, tired brain, sleepless nights from which we wake tired and unrefreshed, weary, languid feeling, headache, confusion of mind, dullness, loss of memory, strange sensations—which mean Insanity.

Cold feet and limbs, numbness, trembling, prickling sensation, extreme weariness of limbs—mean Paralysis. We often disregard the weakness and languor of Debility and Malaria, the disorder of stomach, liver or kidneys until fatal disease fastens upon us.

If you have these feelings, the awful cataract is ahead, and you must save yourself before it is too late. Use Dr. Greene's Nervura, the great nerve and brain invigorator, the best of all medicines, and a cure is sure.

"For the benefit of the afflicted I deem it my duty to say that I was suffering from Nervous Prostration: was so weak and prostrated I could not attend to my household duties; closed my house and gave up my home, as I was so restless I could not remain in one place. I could not sleep for weeks at a time, and insanity seemed sure to result. My case baffled the skill of several eminent physicians. At last, in despair, I resorted to Dr. Greene's Nervura, with wonderful effect. It produced good sleep, restored my appetite and strength, until I feel like a new person. I have recommended Dr. Greene's Nervura to many of my friends, who have also derived great benefit.

MRS JANET JOHNSON,
164 Cedar St., Boston Highlands, Mass."

THE BEST ADVERTISING.

The most efficient advertising in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla is that which comes from the medicine itself. That is, those who are cured by it, speak to friends suffering similarly, who in turn derive benefit and urge others to try this successful medicine. Thus the circle of its popularity is rapidly widening from this cause alone, and more and more are becoming enthusiastic in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla as it actually demonstrates its absolute merit. All that is asked for Hood's Sarsaparilla is that it be given a fair trial. If you need a good blood purifier, or building up medicine, try Hood's Sarsaparilla.
